Depke criticizes easement refusal

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

In his deposition regarding the ongoing Antioch sewer battle, former Lake County Board Chairman Robert Depke said the county's refusal to grant an easement to the Village of Antioch was "absolutely stupid."

Depke questioned the county's decision "because (Antioch) has bought the property now from Glick." Depke was board chairman from 1990-96. Several depositions have been taken in the case, which involves sewer easements filed by Otto Sprenger and the limited liability company (LLC) Deercrest against Lake County, the Village of Antioch and the Forest Preserve Dist.

Though Lake County paid $9,000 in 1998 to the Doolittles for an easement across their property that was obtained in 1999, it contends it has no obligation to provide an easement across the former Glick property now owned by the forest preserve district.

The Glick property is the first property west of the location where the system is stubbed at Rte. 45 that is to service the Northeast Lake Facilities Planning Area Special Service Area (NEFPA SSA). That area is often referred to as the special service area and includes the properties west of Rte. 45 known as Antioch's East Sub Area. The Doolittle property is situated second in line to the west of the stub.

Martin (Al) Galantha, superintendent of public works for Lake County and a Lake County employee of 25 years, and Depke worked together to obtain the Doolittle easement.

Judith Martini, elected to the county board in 1994, hedged on whether she understood the purpose of the easement in her testimony and said she has no clear memory as to whether she looked into the issue at the time despite the fact the property is within her district. Karl Nollenberger, Lake County administrator for the past two years, responded during his deposition that he understood the purpose of this easement was to extend sanitary sewer service to the area. The necessity of contiguity within the special service area was the reason for obtaining the easement.

Galantha testified that the Village of Antioch and Lake County were in a cooperative effort to bring sanitary sewer service to the NEFPA SSA and that, on the request of village engineers, he agreed to assist Antioch obtain the Glick easement.

Nollenberger testified that, as of 2000, the county board would no longer facilitate obtaining easements for the extension of the sewer system west of Rte. 45.

Dwight Aaron Magalis, former Lake County Administrator who now lobbies for Lake County as executive director of Metro Counties, a non-profit group, testified that he could see no purpose for Lake County to stand in the way of the sanitary sewer service being brought to those properties, consistent with the NEFPA SSA establishing ordinance of 1994.

Chop shop busted, cycles recovered

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Antioch Police Dept. recovered about $100,000 worth of stolen Harley-Davidson motorcycles and parts July 25. The department's investigation of "chop shop" activity resulted in the arrest of Daniel Edwards, 42.

Edwards was arrested at his home at 290 North Ave. He was charged with two counts of possession of stolen motorcycles, and four counts of defacing/altering vehicle identification numbers. Chop shop is the term for an operation in which stolen vehicles are stripped down and sold for parts.

According to Det. Sgt. Craig Somerville, the department has been investigating the possibility of chop shop activity at Edwards' residence for the past three years. "It was good timing. With the heat, he had the garage door open," said Somerville. "The garage is like a fortress with plywood over the windows and side doors."

Somerville said he and Det. Daryl Youngs had noticed suspicious activity and approached Edwards, who was working on a motorcycle in the driveway in front of his garage. Somerville said he was clearly able to see disassembled motorcycles in the garage. He said Edwards abruptly closed the garage's overhead door and refused to cooperate with police.

"After further investigation, we contained the property perimeter until we got a search warrant," said Somerville. "If we hadn't, everything would have been moved out by the time we returned."

Later that evening, Antioch police executed the search warrant and recovered three Harley-Davidson motorcycles, two of which were listed as stolen. Police also recovered Harley-Davidson parts, including several frames that had defaced or missing identification numbers.

"Once you change those numbers, you can't identify them (motorcycles)," said Somerville.

According to Somerville, one of the recovered Harleys was disassembled and was in the process of being fitted with after-market parts that would make identification impossible.

"We know other people are involved and we're going to pursue this case," said Somerville. Antioch police have contacted surrounding police agencies to provide information that may be helpful in the investigations of other motorcycle thefts.

The charges Edwards faces are class 4 felonies that could carry a sentence of 3-7 years in prison. Edwards' bond was set at $10,000 pending his Aug. 23 court date. He was also charged with unlawful possession of illegal fireworks and credit cards.

"The long hours Det. Youngs and I put into the case is worth it," said Somerville. "Especially when you are able to call the victims and let them know you have recovered something they have worked so hard for."

State probe of fish kill continues

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Illinois Dept. of Natural Resources (IDNR) officials are still trying to figure out what substance caused the death of hundreds of fish in Channel Lake. Officials do know that a herbicide that was used by a member of the homeowners' association led to the death of the fish in July.

"The immediate threat has passed," said Tim Sickmeyer, chief of the IDNR's investigations division. "The investigation is ongoing. We've identified part of what was released into the water, but not all of it."

To complicate matters, alleged vandalism at the home of the resident responsible for the initial fish kill put motor oil into the water. "Someone allegedly put motor oil on his driveway that went into the storm water and then into the lake," said Sickmeyer. "We've contained that."

Despite the complications, Sickmeyer said, "(The investigation) is coming together. The outside reports (from the Illinois Dept. of Fisheries) are in. We're trying to get all the facts in order, then we'll try to figure out how to proceed."

Sickmeyer said it's too early to tell what, if any, charges will be filed against the homeowner. "We're still looking into that, and trying to determine if it's a civil or a criminal matter or both."

"It's too bad this happened now with all the heat," said Sickmeyer. "Things that normally wouldn't cause a kill, will now." He explained that high temperatures cause the oxygen levels in water, particularly in shallow water, to drop making the fish more susceptible to other negative conditions in the environment.

"If fish are dying now, it's because of the low oxygen levels due to the heat," said Sickmeyer.

Appropriation ordinance approved

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Antioch board members approved an ordinance that allows the village to spend money in emergencies.

"You need to have a document that says you are going to expend the money or you can't (spend it)," said Tim Wells, administrator of the Village of Antioch in explaining why the appropriations ordinance is written for double the village income of about $5 million.

"This is to protect us in the case of an emergency," he said. "Our budget is the guideline."

The ordinance was approved, 4-0, with three absent. Trustee Scott Pierce was also out of town. Mayor Taso Maravelas voted on all issues to make up the quorum.

In explaining how the ordinance could be helpful, Wells said, "We have $60,000 for vehicles (written into the appropriation ordinance). That's if one our dump trucks goes out. We don't have that written into our budget." He added that the village would have to move money around to cover the emergency, but wouldn't be allowed to spend the money for a dump truck without it being written into the ordinance.

"You have to look at the worst-case scenario," he said.

Wells made the presentation at the public hearing as both finance committee chairmen, trustees Bob Caulfield and Wayne Foresta were out town. Wells said, "This is basically the same document you've approved for the past five or six years."

Powell saying goodbye to Antioch, hello to Finland

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

For Vicky Powell, preparing for the coming school year is more complicated than buying a new notebook and some new pens. The incoming junior at Antioch Community High School Dist. 117 (ACHS) has to figure out how to pack everything she will need for an entire year into two 70-pound suitcases as she will be spending the next 12 months in Tampere, Finland, as part of the Antioch Rotary Club youth exchange program.

"I read an announcement about the program last October, and knew I wanted to apply," said Powell. "I had one week to fill out a 25-page application. I then had two interviews with Rotarians. It was at the end of the second interview that I was told I was going."

Powell explained that the Rotary made the decision as to who would go to which of the 49 countries participating in the exchange program. Finland was number eight on her list.

She will spend a week in language camp to become familiar with the Finnish language before enrolling at the Tampereen Yhteiskoulun Lukion School. Powell said she is glad that Finnish people speak English as well.

The school, which has an enrollment of about 600 students, is arts-oriented. That will give Powell the opportunity to concentrate almost exclusively on music and dance. "This will really be a wonderful experience for me," she said.

Powell has a little anxiety about being abroad for the year. "The longest I've ever been away from home was last summer when I spent a month in Texas," she said. "I'm going to miss my friends and my family."

To make the transition easier, she has been communicating with her host family via e-mail. "The family seems really nice," said Powell. "I know it will be fine."

Powell admits she hasn't too much time this summer to brood about her concerns with all the preparations she has to make for the trip. "The Rotary pays the host family and gives us $50 a month for emergencies, but we're not allowed to work while we're there. We have earned all of our spending money, plus our plane fare, here," she said. "My mom is opening an ATM account for me to help make things easier."

State Senator Adeline Geo-Karis (R-Zion) presented Powell with an American flag to bring on her trip.

Of all the anticipated rewards of participating in the program, Powell said she looks forward to traveling most. "I know it will be a great year," she said. "I'm looking forward to traveling around Europe with other foreign exchange students for three weeks at the end of the year."

Cell phone antenna debate continues

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

Like an unwanted collect call, a wireless telephone company hoping to place its antenna on the village's water tower received a cold reception from village trustees.

Chuck Kincaid, real estate manager for Verizon Wireless, brought a proposal back before the village board asking that the company be allowed to lease space on the Anita Strett water tower for an antenna. Kincaid said the Antioch Verizon storeowner told him he regularly fields complaints from its 3,000 area customers about problems using cell phones in the village. He also said the company would rather use an existing building than build a new tower.

"We wanted to bring your our best proposal," said Kincaid as he showed illustrations of the proposed brick building that would sit at the base of the tower. "This is a low impact-type proposal."

The board was not swayed. "I don't think the village needs to be in the position of leasing out water towers in residential areas for cell phone use," Trustee Dorothy Larson said.

While Verizon initially offered the village $900 a month to lease the space, the company told village officials it would pay the same $1,800 a month fee that Nextel pays at a different location. The $21,600 per year is income the village would not otherwise have. Kincaid said the company escalates rent at the rate of 15 percent for each five-year lease extension.

Larson questioned the safety of an antenna of this nature in a residential area. Kincaid responded that the company would never want to be out of compliance with federal standards.

Mayor Taso Maravelas brought up the 1996 Telecommunications Act, and incoming Village Administrator Mike Haley explained, "Federal law says you can't say no based on safety (emissions) questions."

Though previously Trustee Scott Pierce had asked Kincaid to come back with second and third options for the location, the only plan presented was for the Anita Street water tower.

No vote was taken, and Larson asked that Kincaid come back with information about where the closest towers are located to the south, east and west. "Also, I want to know why it can't be located on the tower in the township," Larson noted.

India children's choir performs Aug. 10

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

The Hmar tribe, from a remote area in northeast India's Manipur state located on the China-Burma border, is said to have made a transition from fierce headhunters to "hearthunters" in the past 100 years as the entire tribe has evangelized. A group of 25 children from the tribe will perform traditional songs to illustrate how the gospel of John transformed their tribe. The performance will be Aug. 10, 7 p.m., at the Chain of Lakes Community Bible Church, 23201 W. Grass Lake Road (east of Rte. 83), Antioch.

"Admission is free," said Pattie Stagg, who handles communications for the church. "An ice cream social immediately follows."

Ronald Wells wrote the musical drama after traveling to northeast India over 20 years ago. The children's choir consists of 8- to 12-year-olds.

The choir is sponsored by Bibles for the World, a Christian organization in Colorado Springs, Colo. The group's founders, Rochunga and Mawii Pudaite, translated the Bible into their native Hmar dialect.

"Today, 90 percent of the Hmars can read and write," said Rochunga Pudaite. "Some have become doctors, lawyers, political leaders, preachers and teachers." The organization currently runs 38 village schools, five high schools and a junior college with a total enrollment of nearly 10,000 students.

"Everyone is welcome to come and hear these children sing," said Stagg. "It should be a really wonderful performance."

For more information about this performance, contact the church at 838-0103. For more information about Bibles for the World, log onto its web site, www.biblesfortheworld.org.

Lifeguard shortage cuts pool time

By JULIE MURPHY
Staff Reporter

A shortage of lifeguards means the Antioch swimming pool will be closed more often this month.

"We're going to keep the pool open as much as possible," said Laurie Stahl, director of the parks and recreation department. "But residents should call the parks office (395-2160) between Aug. 20-Labor Day to see if the pool will be open."

Stahl explained that her three top people are going back to college. Locally, high school students are scheduled to go back to school Aug. 21 while those in grade school don't go back until after Labor Day. "That leaves two weeks with a lot of kids off of school, and not a lot of lifeguards to watch them," said Stahl.

Stahl said she would gladly look at hiring any interested adult lifeguards temporarily for the rest of this summer. "For next year, I'm looking for an adult pool director," said Stahl. She added that it's a great job for someone in the teaching profession.

"We don't like having to do things this way, but we can't have the pool open without ample supervision," said Stahl.

Lions barbecue beats heat in the kitchen

If the heat and humidity have dissuaded you from cooking lately, come enjoy barbecue chicken served up in Williams Park by the Antioch Lions Club on Sunday, Aug. 5, in an event that coincides with the Antioch Rescue Squad raffle. Platefuls of chicken and all the fixings will be ready at about noon and will be served throughout the day.

The proceeds from the food sales go to the Antioch Lions Club to support the community projects and programs it supports. The Antioch Junior Women's Club assists with some of the day's events that serve about 3,000 people over the course of the day.

The auction is broken up into three segments: a treasure booth, a silent auction and a live auction. The treasure booth is made up of garage-sale type items. The silent auction has nice items and antiques, as does the live auction. The proceeds from the high bidders for these items will go to the rescue squad.

OUR TOWN

Julie Murphy

Some of the items that will be up for auction include antique furniture and sewing machines, new bicycles, four new curio cabinets and a pick up truck among other items. The Antioch Ace Hardware has donated a cane and wicker settee with glass-top table. Lyons and Ryan has donated a nice home barbecue grill.

Additionally, there will be a new boat-type item that is used as a dock for a Jet Ski. The Jet Ski then powers the boat that can carry about six people.

The two organizations are deserving of support, just as the rest of us are deserving of a break from the kitchen and some good deals on antiques and other goodies.

Congratulations to the young women who represented Antioch in the Lake County pageant. Miss Antioch Erin Haley was second runner-up. Mary Cashmore was one of five finalists in the Junior Miss competition. Little Miss Antioch Mallory Lukasik did a great job representing our town.

Do you want to save a little time when you head out with the family to Six Flags Great America?

Tickets can be purchased in advance at the parks and recreation office at 806 Holbek Dr. The cost is $30.50 for adults and $20.50 for children. Children ages 2 and younger are free.

There will be enough lines to wait in once you're inside the park; the line to purchase tickets at the main gate doesn't have to be an additional one.

If you have interesting information or anecdotes to submit for "Our Town" call staff reporter Julie Murphy at 223-8161, ext. 600 or e-mail, moorfe@ix.netcom.com

FOOT NOTES

Dr. Lee M. Tisa, Podiatrist

ORTHOTICS

You have only 1 pair of feet, so it's a good idea to take care of them. Most foot pain is a result of a faulty relationship between the bones and muscles in the foot. Even the slightest misalignment, of the bones and muscles can cause a lot of discomfort. Misalignment can result in a number of problems, such as pronation, flat feet, persistent ankle sprains, bunions, corns, calluses, even back and neck pain. Orthotics can help these problems. Prescription orthotics are custom made orthopedic devices which correct your individual foot problems. They're made of high impact material such as plastics and super strength woven fibers and are designed to be inserted right into the shoes. The most important feature of a pair of orthotics is they're made specifically for your feet. As your foot rests on the orthotic, it is gently and consistently directed into the correct position for walking, running and standing. With a pair of orthotics, pressure points, improper rotation of the foot, and painful muscle strain are eliminated because your foot is functioning properly. If you have any questions regarding orthotics, call Dr. Lee Tisa for a no cost consultation.

DUI

David G. Mau, 57, of 42651 N. Deep Lake Road, Antioch, was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on July 24 at 9:44 p.m. on Deep Lake Road south of Hidden Creek.

Police observed an oncoming vehicle driving with its left tires on the centerline of Rte. 173. The officer turned around to follow the vehicle and witnessed it swerve within its lane and cross the centerline with all four tires. The officer then activated the eyewitness camera in the police car.

The vehicle made a wide turn as it turned onto Deep Lake Road. The officer activated his siren, but the driver did not pull over until a spotlight was shone in the rearview mirror.

The officer detected the strong odor of alcoholic beverage while speaking with Mau. Field sobriety tests ended because Mau had limited balance.

Mau was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept., where he was issued citations for improper lane usage and DUI. He refused chemical testing and was issued additional citations for a second count of improper lane usage and an improper turn.

The booking room tape and in-car tape were secured as evidence. Mau was released on cash bond pending his court date.

Carol M. Brock, 71, of 1724 E. Lakeshore Dr., Twin Lakes, Wis., was arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol on July 23 at 3:29 p.m. on Rte. 173 east of Talman.

An officer was dispatched to the area of the Sky Lite Tavern for a possible DUI driver leaving the tavern. As police pulled into the parking lot, a second call came in.

The officer saw a van turning westbound out of the parking lot, making a wide turn onto the shoulder. When Brock was stopped, the officer detected the odor of alcohol on her breath.

Due to a bad back, Brock said she wouldn't be able to perform some field sobriety tests and failed those she tried.

Brock was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept., where she was issued citations for improper lane usage and DUI. She agreed to a breath test, but was unable to properly complete the test. She was brought through booking procedures and released on personal recognizance pending her Sept. 4 court date.

Driving while revoked

Matthew J. Owen, 38, of 101 Crisfield Dr., Grayslake, was arrested for driving while revoked on July 24 at 8:05 a.m. on Rte. 173 west of Rte. 83.

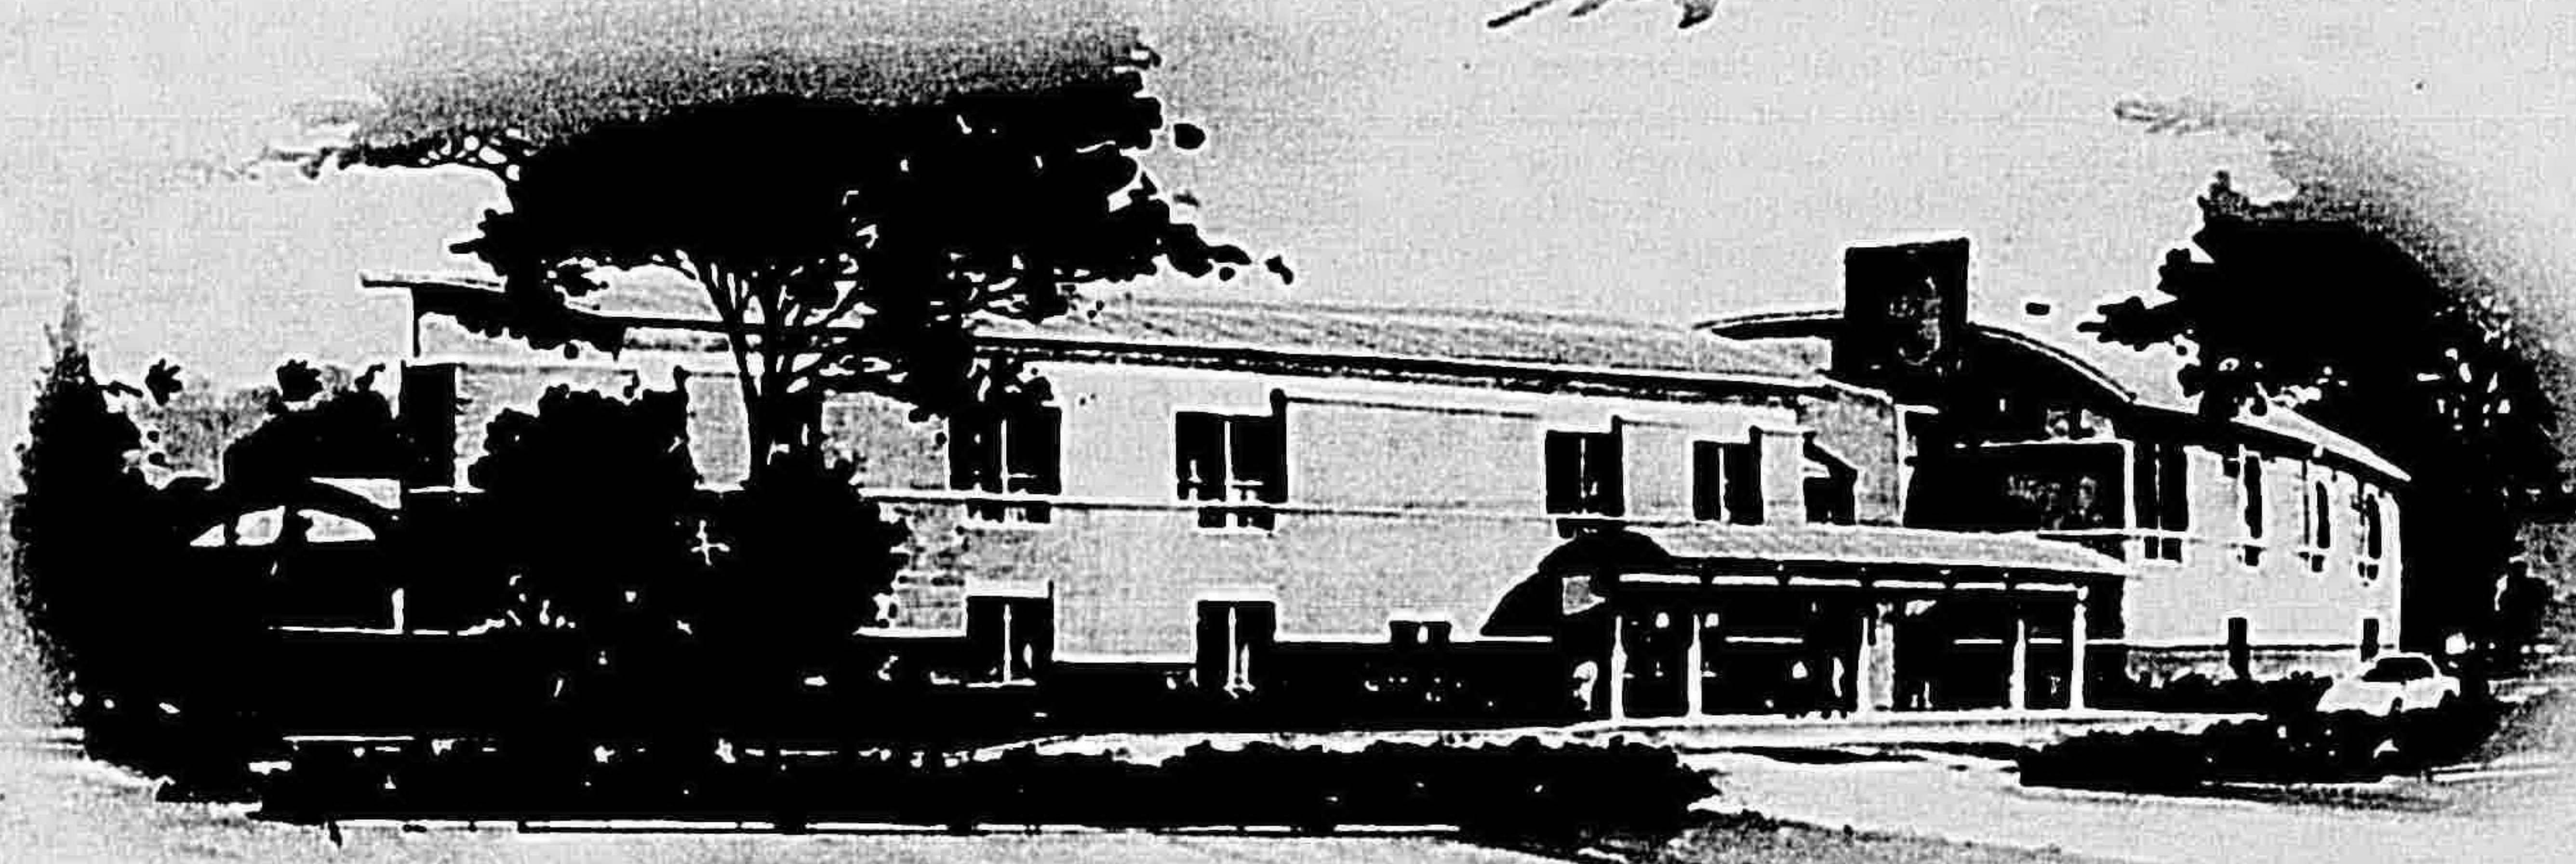

Police clocked his vehicle traveling 45 mph in a 30-mph zone. Owen's identifiers were checked through LEADS and returned with information that his driver's license was revoked.

He was arrested and transported to the Antioch Police Dept., where he was issued citations for speeding, operating an uninsured vehicle and driving while revoked. Owen was released on personal recognizance pending his Aug. 8 court date.

Bravo!

Tom Dreesen knows a thing or two about entertaining a crowd. The nationally known comedian, who used to open for Frank Sinatra in Las Vegas on a regular basis, has made over 500 national television appearances while making his 61st alone on 'The Tonight Show' back in April.

And while Bing Crosby pretty much started 'celebrity golf,' Dreesen is looking to now entertain in similar fashion. It comes by way of the first annual Tom Dreesen Celebrity Invitational. The event will take place the week of August 29 through September 2 at the Grand Geneva Spa and Resort in Lake Geneva, Wis.

"We really like the setup here in Lake Geneva," said Dreesen during the event's media day. "Besides San Diego, this is the only place where the players can pretty much walk out onto the course from their room."

Since its inception five years ago, the CPT, or Celebrity Players Tour, has conducted over 40 events.

The CPT basically encompasses celebrities from the sports as well as entertainment arenas.

Scheduled to play in the Labor Day weekend event include the likes of former Bears quarterback Jim McMahon, Hall of Fame pitcher Rollie Fingers, actor Dennis Farina, The Gatlin Brothers and Rick Rhoden, the current CPT money leader.

Besides bringing celebrity golf to the area, the cause is worth its weight in gold alone.

"This is an entertainment tour and we're looking to entertain corporate America," said Dreesen. "But all of the proceeds go towards charity. We're hoping to raise more than five million for local charities (this year)."

One of those charities hits home with Dreesen, as his sister Darlene was afflicted with multiple sclerosis. Other proceeds from the event will benefit the Make-A-Wish Foundation.

"This event will serve many purposes," added Dreesen, a Chicago native. "It's a chance to keep the competitive spirit alive in many of the athletes who have retired from their respective sport while also helping two very worthwhile causes."

The two-day event will carry a purse of $235,000 with $30,000 going to the victor.

General admission tickets can be ordered on-line at www.celebtour.com or by phone at (262) 650-6518.

A final reminder that Condell Medical Center's Sports Medicine Department is offering physicals on Aug. 4 from 12-5 p.m. at Vernon Hills High School. Appointments are taken on a first-come, first-serve basis with the cost being $35. Condell's physicals also include checking for scoliosis because high school athletes are growing and their spine is most likely to curve.

Parents of the athlete do not have to be present but the IHSA requires the guardian's signature on the form, which is provided by Condell, to be signed before the athlete turns it in to their respective school.

Mundelein High is also in search of an assistant girls tennis coach for the upcoming fall season. The season begins Aug. 13. Interested parties should contact Athletic Director Doug Duval at 949-2200, ext. 341.

John Phelps can be reached at (847) 223-8161, ext. 132; fax (847) 223-8810; or e-mail at edit@lnd.com.

Antioch All-Stars fall short of Little League World Series

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

Following a 14-1 thumping of Norridge to give the Antioch 12-and-under All Stars a Section 4 title and a trip to the state tournament in Robinson, Ill., the team was riding high.

Antioch headed into the tournament with an undefeated 8-0 record and a second chance at qualifying for the Little League World Series in Williamsport, Pa. As 10-year-olds in 1999, much of the team went downstate and finished fourth.

After the first game of the tournament, a 5-2 win over Hinsdale, the team was even more psyched.

"This first win was very big in confidence building," said head coach Jerry Popp. "As 10-year-olds in 1999, we lost two games right away."

The game was scoreless in the third-inning when Michael Dussault hit a three-run home run to give Antioch a 3-0 lead.

Hinsdale scored two in the fourth to pull within a run but Antioch scored a run in the fifth and sixth-innings to pull away.

Chuckie Kempf picked up the win, allowing two runs over six innings.

"Every player worked hard to get this win," said Popp. "It's great for the kids, a very emotional win."

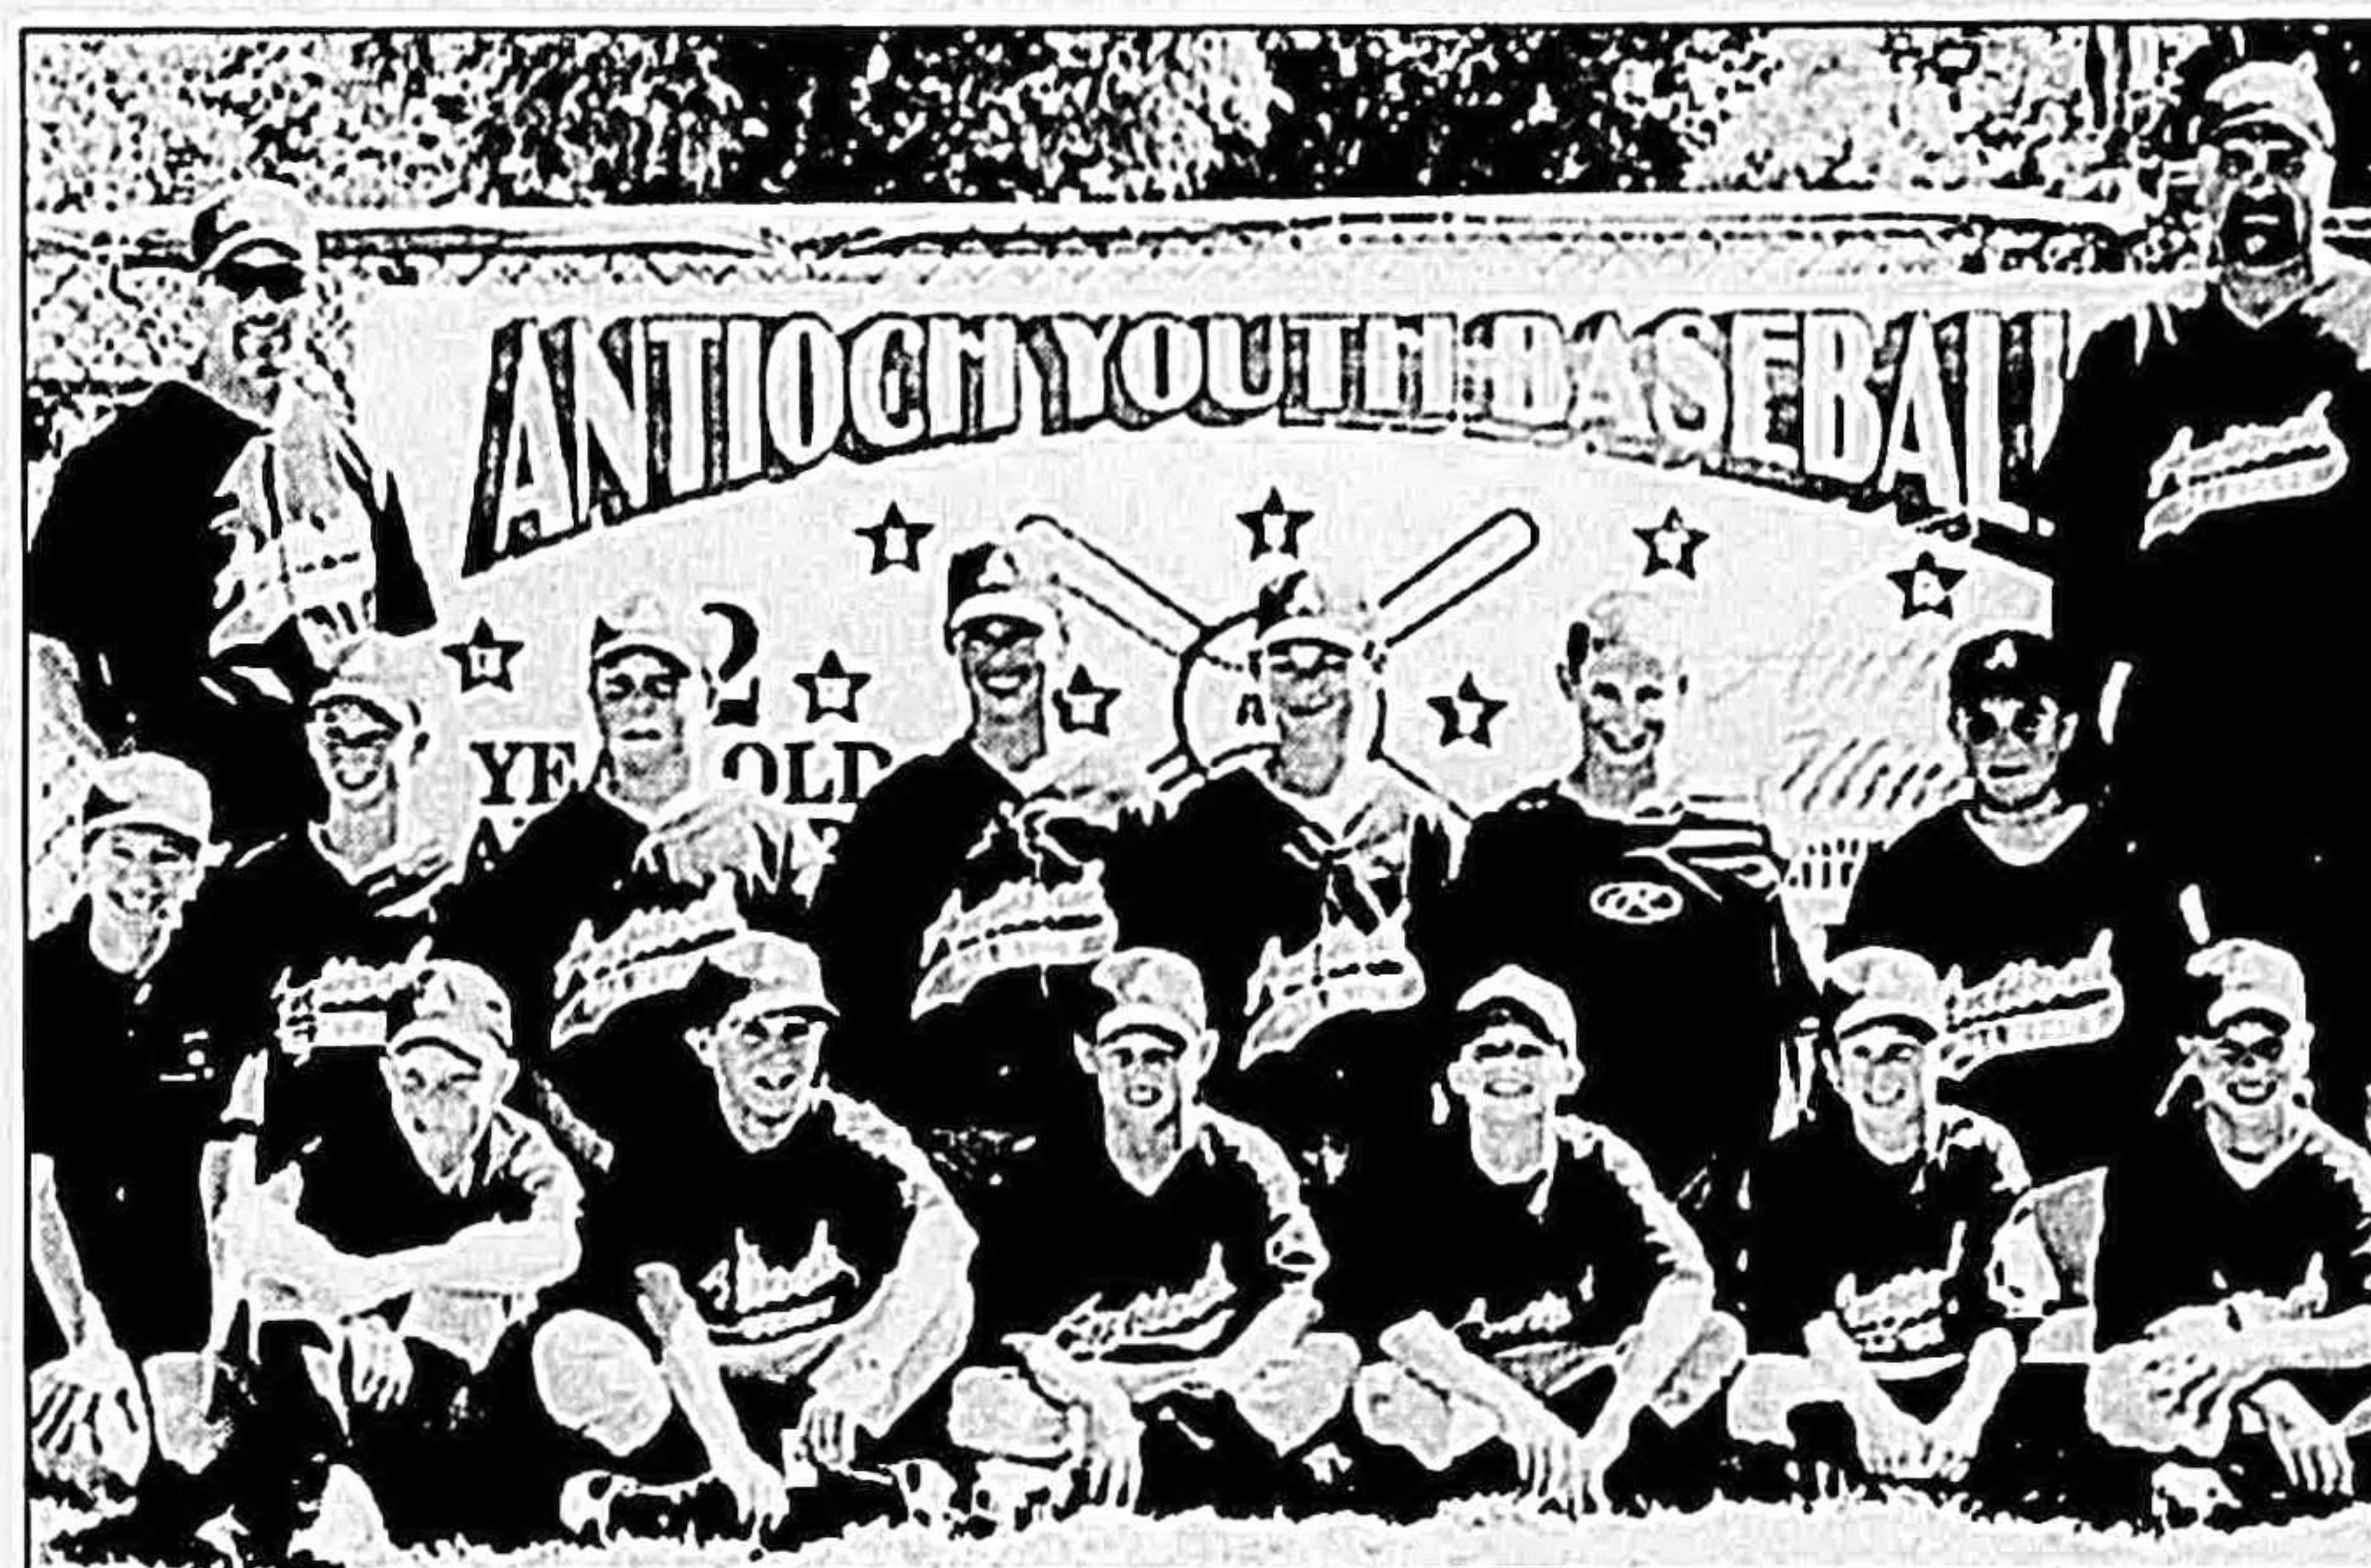

However, the team suffered a setback in the second game, tallying just one hit in a 1-0 loss to Brown County. The loss was Antioch's first of the season, after eight straight wins.

Lost in the tough 1-0 nail-biter was the pitching of Michael Thompson. He allowed just two hits over six innings. One of those hits, however, followed a pair of walks in the fourth inning to give Brown County the game's lone run.

"It was a tight game, both teams played well," said Popp. "We just didn't get enough hits."

Antioch's season came to an end the following game against Moline.

The game was scoreless in the fourth-inning when Kempf experienced back stiffness and an elbow twinge on the mound. Popp noticed this but Kempf convinced him to let him

The decision backfired as Moline jumped all over Kempf in the fourth and sixth innings with six runs.

Trailing 6-0 in the sixth, Antioch's bats came alive with three hits by Cameron Ruth, Bjorn Jaranson and Trevor Popp but it was too little, too late as Antioch lost the game 6-1.

"We just couldn't hit when we had to," said Popp. "The best team's going to win and Moline was the better team."

Despite the loss, Popp was still extremely pleased with the season.

"Team play was the key to our success," said Popp. "Every kid had a job to do and they did it."

No event better exemplified the team's unity than the mass shaving of heads prior to the Section 4 tournament.

Popp had the idea to shave his head, followed by all 12 team members. As the team kept winning tournament games, parents began shaving their heads. In all, 19 people shaved their heads in the spirit of team unity.

"I thought it would be good for team unity and all of the kids thought it was cool," said Popp. "I think it brought all of the kids together."

This won't be the last time that this team will take the field together as much of the players will be back next year as 13-year-olds for the Antioch traveling team.

Antioch Triple A softball on brink of state berth

By JOE PRUSKI
Correspondent

The 9 and 10-year-old Antioch Triple A girls softball has put themselves in good position to be the first team from the league to earn the right to play in the state tournament.

The Norridge tournament, held this week, determined their fate. Through its first three games, Antioch was 2-1 in the double-elimination event.

Antioch won its first game by slaughter rule over South Elgin and then came back and beat them again in the third game 12-3.

Antioch's lone defeat came in the form of an 10-9, extra-inning thriller to host Norridge. The two teams collided again with a regional title and state berth on the line.

"As a team, we have played good, solid defense the entire tournament," said coach Tim Cook.

Much of the reason for their strong defense can be attributed to their superior pitching. Few teams if any have the pitching strength to match up with Antioch.

"The other pitchers we face aren't quite as good," said Cook. "It's unusual to have this many good pitchers on a team. We have great depth."

Two pitchers in particular who have pitched well all tournament are Kirsti Crichton and Alyssa Cook. Cook earned the win in Antioch's 12-3 win over Elgin South.

Don't be fooled by Antioch's defense though. The bats have also proved dangerous. In the three games in Norridge, Antioch has produced more than 30 runs.

"We did what needed to be done (at the plate)," said Cook.

If Antioch is able to win back-to-back games over Norridge, it would bring much respect not only to the team, but the league (Antioch Youth Baseball) itself. It would also give a tremendous boost for generations to follow.

"(A state berth) would give validity to our program," said Cook. "It would show that we were doing things right."

Regardless of the outcome, Antioch's strong showing throughout the year and in Norridge is proof enough that the program is headed in the right direction.

Love reaches tennis semis

By ROB BACKUS
Staff Reporter

The Warren tennis camp's summer schedule continues to have success, this time in the Mississippi Valley Jr. Open USTA tournament in Dubuque, Iowa.

Antioch graduate Jason Love, who will play at Illinois Wesleyan during the upcoming season, continued his excellent summer play. Love reached the semifinals in both the 18-and-under singles and doubles draws before being eliminated in both.

Many other camp participants had successful showings at Dubuque.

Christine Matus and Kanika Rustagi each advanced to the quarterfinals in the girls 16-and-under singles. They also teamed up to reach the semifinals in the girls 16-and-under doubles competition.

"Christine and Kanika both proved that they're going to have a good fall," said camp instructor and Warren head tennis coach Greg Cohen. "They showed that they going to help the (Warren Varsity) team."

Mark Skilling, an incoming Warren freshman, won four matches in the boys 14-and-under singles to take second in the consolation bracket. He also teamed with Brian Silverstein to win the consolation title at boys 14-and-under doubles.

Camp participants competing in the boys 16-and-under division continued to have success.

Joe Doreza advanced to the quarterfinals in both singles and with Brian Early in the doubles competition. Brandon Miller also advanced to the quarterfinals in singles before losing to the No. 2 seed. Miller and doubles partner Nathan Schramm won a three-set match in 18-and-under doubles before losing to the No. 1 seeds.

Dan Otterson won the consolation title at 16-and-under singles. Doreza, Early, Miller, Schramm and Otterson are all upcoming juniors at Warren.

Otterson's consolation title came at the expense of fellow camp member, and upcoming Warren sophomore Dave Martinez. Martinez continued his improvement with three wins to reach the final of the consolation bracket. He also teamed with Otterson to reach the quarterfinals in doubles.

"Martinez was a bright spot for the second straight tournament," said Cohen. "He just keeps getting better and better."

Other camp members to win matches in Dubuque were Konrad Siczek, Kevin Chan, Alan Johnson and Matt Heinz.

The Dubuque tournament ended the summer session for the Warren tennis camp. A Junior Excellence Academy for grades six through nine will run through early August.

New ETAP program being launched

The Essential Tremor Awareness Program (ETAP) is being launched, by Sandy Kamen Wisniewski, author of the article "I Couldn't Stop Shaking," featured in the May 2001 issue of "Women's Day" magazine.

Essential Tremor is a neurological disorder, which affects over 10 million people, causing the sufferer uncontrollable tremors of any or all body parts. Since the article Wisniewski has been speaking for groups all over the area about Essential Tremor.

Wisniewski has also appeared on "The Debra Tuncan Show" in Houston, Tx., a Disney sponsored talk show.

"Essential Tremor (ET) is widely unheard of so it needs to be brought to the public's attention. There are a lot of misconceptions and ET can profoundly affect people's lives," Wisniewski said.

Additionally, Wisniewski is forming a support group for young people with Essential Tremor.

"Young people with Essential Tremor face different challenges with their lives than retired people and the elderly. Their careers are affected as well as challenges with every day tasks of caring for a family," Wisniewski said.

For more information on Essential Tremor, contact Sandy Kamen Wisniewski at 816-0831.

During the two weeks front-Aug. 1-15, thousands of children in Chicago and surrounding communities will be sporting the latest hairstyles for the new school year, while at the same time helping others in need. It's all part of the second annual Share-A-Haircut campaign, a "kids helping kids" initiative taking place at hundreds of Hair Cuttery salons nationwide, including 98 in the Chicago area, down state Illinois, northwest Indiana and southern Wisconsin.

In the Chicago region, more than 780 stylists will donate $50,000 worth of complimentary cuts to children from community based programs run by the Illinois Department of Human Services and other local social service agencies. The annual campaign is designed to increase self-esteem for underprivileged children in time for the new school year.

Howie Dorough, of the Backstreet Boys, lends his support to the Share-A-Haircut campaign along with his sister/singer Pollyanna. The two "shared a haircut" during last year's campaign with foster child Freddy and stylist Toni L. Houser.

For every kid's cut (up to age 18) purchased at any Hair Cuttery salon from Aug. 1 to 15, the company will donate a free haircut to a disadvantaged child in the same community. Nationally, the 2001 program goal is to provide a record-number 50,000 haircuts company-wide—topping last year's target of 40,000 free cuts.

"Last year, our stylists had so many heart-warming stories to share of youngsters who'd never been to a salon before, walking out with a smile and a new sense of confidence," said Christi Osburn, regional leader for Chicago-area Hair Cuttery salons. "We can't wait to do it again!"

Hair Cuttery is a family-owned, value-priced hair salon, employing more than 10,000 stylists in 13 states on the East Coast and in the Midwest. Open seven days a week with no appointment needed, Hair Cuttery offers a variety of services, plus a full selection of professional products. To find a salon in their local area, parents and children can check out Hair Cuttery's web site at www.haircuttery.com or call (800) 956-HAIR.

When the ship "Endurance" became stuck in ice, the journey became a battle for survival.

Witness an extraordinary story of human survival in the face of nature's most bitter elements.

In 1914 the British Imperial Trans-Antarctic Expedition, under the command of Sir Ernest Shackleton, left England en route to the far reaches of the Antarctic. A transcontinental journey was the plan, but when their ship "Endurance" became stuck in ice, leaving the men stranded, the journey became a simple battle for survival, a true story of heroism that approached the limits of human endurance.

"Shackleton's Antarctic Adventure," is now open at the Humphrey IMAX Dome Theater at the Milwaukee Public Museum, recounts the dramatic story of Shackleton's ill-fated expedition in which his crew of 27 men embarked on a journey that would become an epic, 635-day struggle for survival. Tickets are $6.50 for adults (18-59), $5.50 for seniors (60 plus) and $5 for children (4-17). Children 3 and under seated on an adult's lap are free. Call (414) 319-4629 for showtimes and reservations. A $1.50 service fee is charged for advance reservations.

Sir Edmund Shackleton

After five long months on a drifting ice floe, the men detected the ice below them breaking, so they crammed into three lifeboats and managed to make it to bleak

Elephant Island, the first time they were on land in 497 days. With rations low and little hope of rescue, Shackleton decided on the risky maneuver that etched his name in the annals of great adventurers: leaving most of his men on the island, he set off on a 17-day, 800-mile long journey through some of the most dangerous waters in the world in a tiny, 22-foot-long open boat in hope of reaching a whaling station on South Georgia Island.

In the Antarctic, where nothing comes easy, the six-person crew was tossed and turned by gale-force winds, heaving seas, towering waves and even a hurricane. Navigator Frank Worsley masterfully guided them by sextant and sun to South Georgia Island, 17 days later. The journey was so long and precarious that had Worsley been off by even half a degree on the sextant the crew would have missed South Georgia entirely, disappearing into the open ocean and forever sealing their fate and the fates of the 22 stranded crewmen.

Finally, in order to reach the whaling colony on the other side of the island, Shackleton had to traverse 26 miles of unexplored mountains, becoming the first explorer to do so. Amazingly, Shackleton and crew arrived at the camp only 36 hours after landing ashore, and quickly sent a boat to rescue the 22 crewmen. Even more amazingly, when the rescue boat appeared after a 635-day ordeal in Antarctica—not a single life was lost.

"Shackleton's Antarctic Adventure" melds re-enactments of the crew's ordeal—including a dramatic crossing of South Georgia Island by three of today's most skilled mountaineers—with crew photographer Frank Hurley's original photographs and film. Particularly impressive are moving images of crew members trying to free themselves from the ice with crosscut saws; the "Endurance" being crushed by shifting ice during the spring thaw, and then sinking; and Shackleton sailing into the stormy sea in search of help, his crew standing on the shore of Elephant Island, bidding him a safe journey.

"Shackleton's Antarctic Adventure" is narrated by Oscar-winning actor Kevin Spacey, co-produced by White Mountain Films and WGBH/Boston and directed by George Butler.

Admission to the museum is: adults $6.50, seniors (60+) $5, children (ages 4-17) $4. For more information, call (414) 278-2702.

'Planet of the Apes' draws head-scratching crowd

Those dirty Hollywood executives got their stinking hands all over Tim Burton's "re-imagined" version of the 1968 cult classic "Planet of the Apes."

Given Burton's track record of effectively creating and re-creating mythologies, as in "Edward Scissorhands," "Batman" and "The Legend of Sleepy Hollow," I was prepared for a film summoning up the nightmarish ape-dominated world first defined by Pierre Boulle's 1963 novel.

Instead, we get a mish-mash of sly references to the earlier film, anachronistic clichés ("I'm having a bad hair day," a well-coiffed female ape says, at a dinner party) and a white-bread hero who lacks the passion and imagination of his 1968 counterpart.

The plot is a now familiar one to most moviegoers. In the year 2029, an astronaut crash-lands on a strange planet, apparently earth-like, but dominated by chimpanzees, gorillas and orangutans.

In Boulle's novel, as well as in movie review

Brenda Balin-Beitscher

the original film interpretation, the planet is a metaphorical ground for satirical commentary on racism and social organization. The 1968 film added a commentary on nuclear war, as well, in its famous twist ending.

This film ends with a different twist—one that left the audience justifiably bewildered.

The ending is consistent with the one in Boulle's novel, but Boulle provides a sociological explanation that makes sense of it. Burton's version misuses the overdone science fiction convention of time travel to create an ending that is a non-sequitur to the rest of the film.

I've never liked time-warped stories, anyway, being a firm believer in Einstein's theory of relativity, which allows fast-forwarding in time, but never moving backwards. The suggested ending raises paradoxical questions not answered by logic, let alone science or sociology.

Allowing for suspension of disbelief, the film still falls short of the expectation. Discarding Boulle's premise, the linchpin of the '68 version, Burton's humans can speak and can organize themselves. It makes their state of captivity all the more implausible.

When a U.S. Air Force captain (Mark Wahlberg) drops into the ape world, he brings with him none of the characteristics of a hero. He has already shown himself self-centered and more petulant than passionate. He encounters a slave trader (Paul Giamatti, who played Pig Vomit in Howard Stern's "Private Parts") who seems to exist, albeit ineffectively, purely as comic relief.

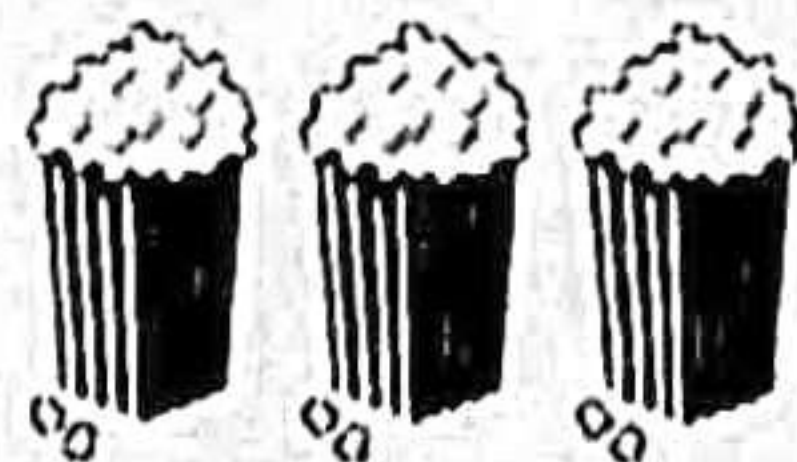

On the other end of the spectrum, the over-the-top human-hating General Thade (Tim Roth) makes the already insipid Wahlberg seem even paler by comparison. Thade introduces the only serious glimmer of social commentary, as he evokes images of Nazism when he discusses a final solution to the "human problem."

In a quirky cameo, NRA spokesman Charlton Heston gets to say, once again, "Damn them all!" as he curses humans and their infernal invention of firearms.

As if all this were not confusing enough, Burton dallies on the fringes of a love triangle between Leo and a human woman (Estella Warren) who can speak, but never says anything of consequence, and Ari (Helena Bonham Carter), an ape who cares about the ethical treatment of humans. This triangle never comes close to the tension created in Boulle's novel, largely due to lack of commitment to the concept.

The film is filled with a lot of the kind of detailed and off-the-wall eye-candy one has come to expect from Burton, but about halfway through the film, the "action" sequences made me think another director had taken over midstream.

In this case, I will turn our popcorn box rating system on end. I give this film three boxes, because I wanted to like it more, but couldn't. Damn them all.

Moliere Theatre Festival opens with two plays

The Stage Two Theatre Company announces the directors and casts of the two Moliere Theatre Festival plays, the world premieres of Timothy Mooney's new adaptations of "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" and "Sganarelle" or "The Imaginary Cuckold."

The theater company will be presenting both plays as part of a single evening's entertainment with "Sganarelle" as the curtain raiser for "The Doctor in Spite of Himself."

'We hope to mine the pratfall/pie-in-the-face humor with commedia dell'arte to today's Jim Carey movies'

Anna Bahow
Director

Performances will be held Aug. 3 through Aug. 25 at the Estonian House, Estonian Lane, just off of Milwaukee Ave. in Deerfield (1/4 mile north of Deerfield Rd.)

Directing "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" is Chicagoan Anna Bahow, who is a member of the Women's Theatre Alliance, and has worked with many writers developing new plays. Bahow says that in taking on this piece she and the cast play with the long history of slapstick comedy and presentational style.

"By playing with the ideas of vaudeville and its traditions we hope to mine the pratfall/pie-in-the-face humor with commedia dell'arte to today's Jim Carey movies," stated Bahow.

Directing "Sganarelle" or "The Imaginary Cuckold" is Cicero resident J.A. Benedict, who studied classical staging in England and Germany, working with the head of the translation department of the National Theatre of Great Britain.

Benedict commented on the production, "I love scripts that deal with language. I like wordsmiths; I like people who use words cleverly, which is what has drawn me to Moliere and the Mooney adaptation in particular. While the plot to "Sganarelle" is simple, it's the language that makes it fun."

Double-cast performers include Gary Grenholm of Evanston, who plays both of the stern fathers in the plays. Lindsey Diederich of Wheaton plays the two daughters. Lisa Beacom of Chicago portrays Sganarelle's wife, Martine, in "The Doctor in Spite of Himself" and the maid in "Sganarelle." Ed Krystosek of Chicago portrays the lover, Celie in "Sganarelle," and two roles in "The Doctor in Spite of Himself."

The company is rounded out by five other performers, including Rocky Russo of Evanston, Kurt Bloom of Gurnee, Dru Kuperman of Deerfield, Pam Dickler and P.J. Jenkinson, both of Chicago.

Festival performances will be on Friday evenings at 8 p.m., Sunday matinees at 4 p.m. Aug. 3 through Aug. 24. On Saturday, Aug. 25, there will be a 4 p.m. and 8 p.m. show.

Tickets are $15 for the general public, $12 for students and seniors, and $10 for groups of eight or more. Call 432-7469 for tickets and more information.

cool ones.

Grayslake Police Commander Matt McCutcheon said things went great at the fair and he wasn't aware of any incidents on the fair grounds.

"There was one hit-and-run accident and we assisted the county in a couple of things but it went well," he said.

Members of the county reserve deputies and explorer programs were on hand to assist the massive number of cars entering and exiting the fair grounds.

Sgt. Gary Govekar of the Lake County Sheriff's Department echoed similar sentiments.

"I worked the fair and it all seemed to go really smooth," he said.

The fair was well-attended by residents and should break attendance records.

Fremont issue closer to resolution

Interest is mounting in formation of a Fremont Township Open Space district that, if successful, will have an impact on the growth plans of seven neighboring municipalities.

"Reaction of the residents is overwhelmingly supportive," declared Lorraine "Raine" Ray of Wauconda, cochair of the organizing committee.

"Really, it's unanimous," added Ray for emphasis.

Trustees of Fremont Township will conduct a public hearing, Wednesday, Aug. 22, at 8 p.m. on whether to put formation of the district to voters in the form of a referendum on the March 2002, ballot.

Ray said a committee decision to eliminate condemnation as a form of open space acquisition is proving to be the most telling point in favor of the proposition.

Legal language of the petition calling for a referendum now is being reviewed by the township attorney, Frederick W. Rawles of Waukegan.

Because of the no condemnation provision, Trustee Robert J. "Bob" Meyer of Grayslake "is more receptive" to the district proposal, according to Ray, now that he realizes there is solid support for the plan.

Meyer cast the lone vote against trustee approval of authorizing an exploratory committee.

Trustees have 60 days to consider the request to put formation of the district before voters following the public hearing.

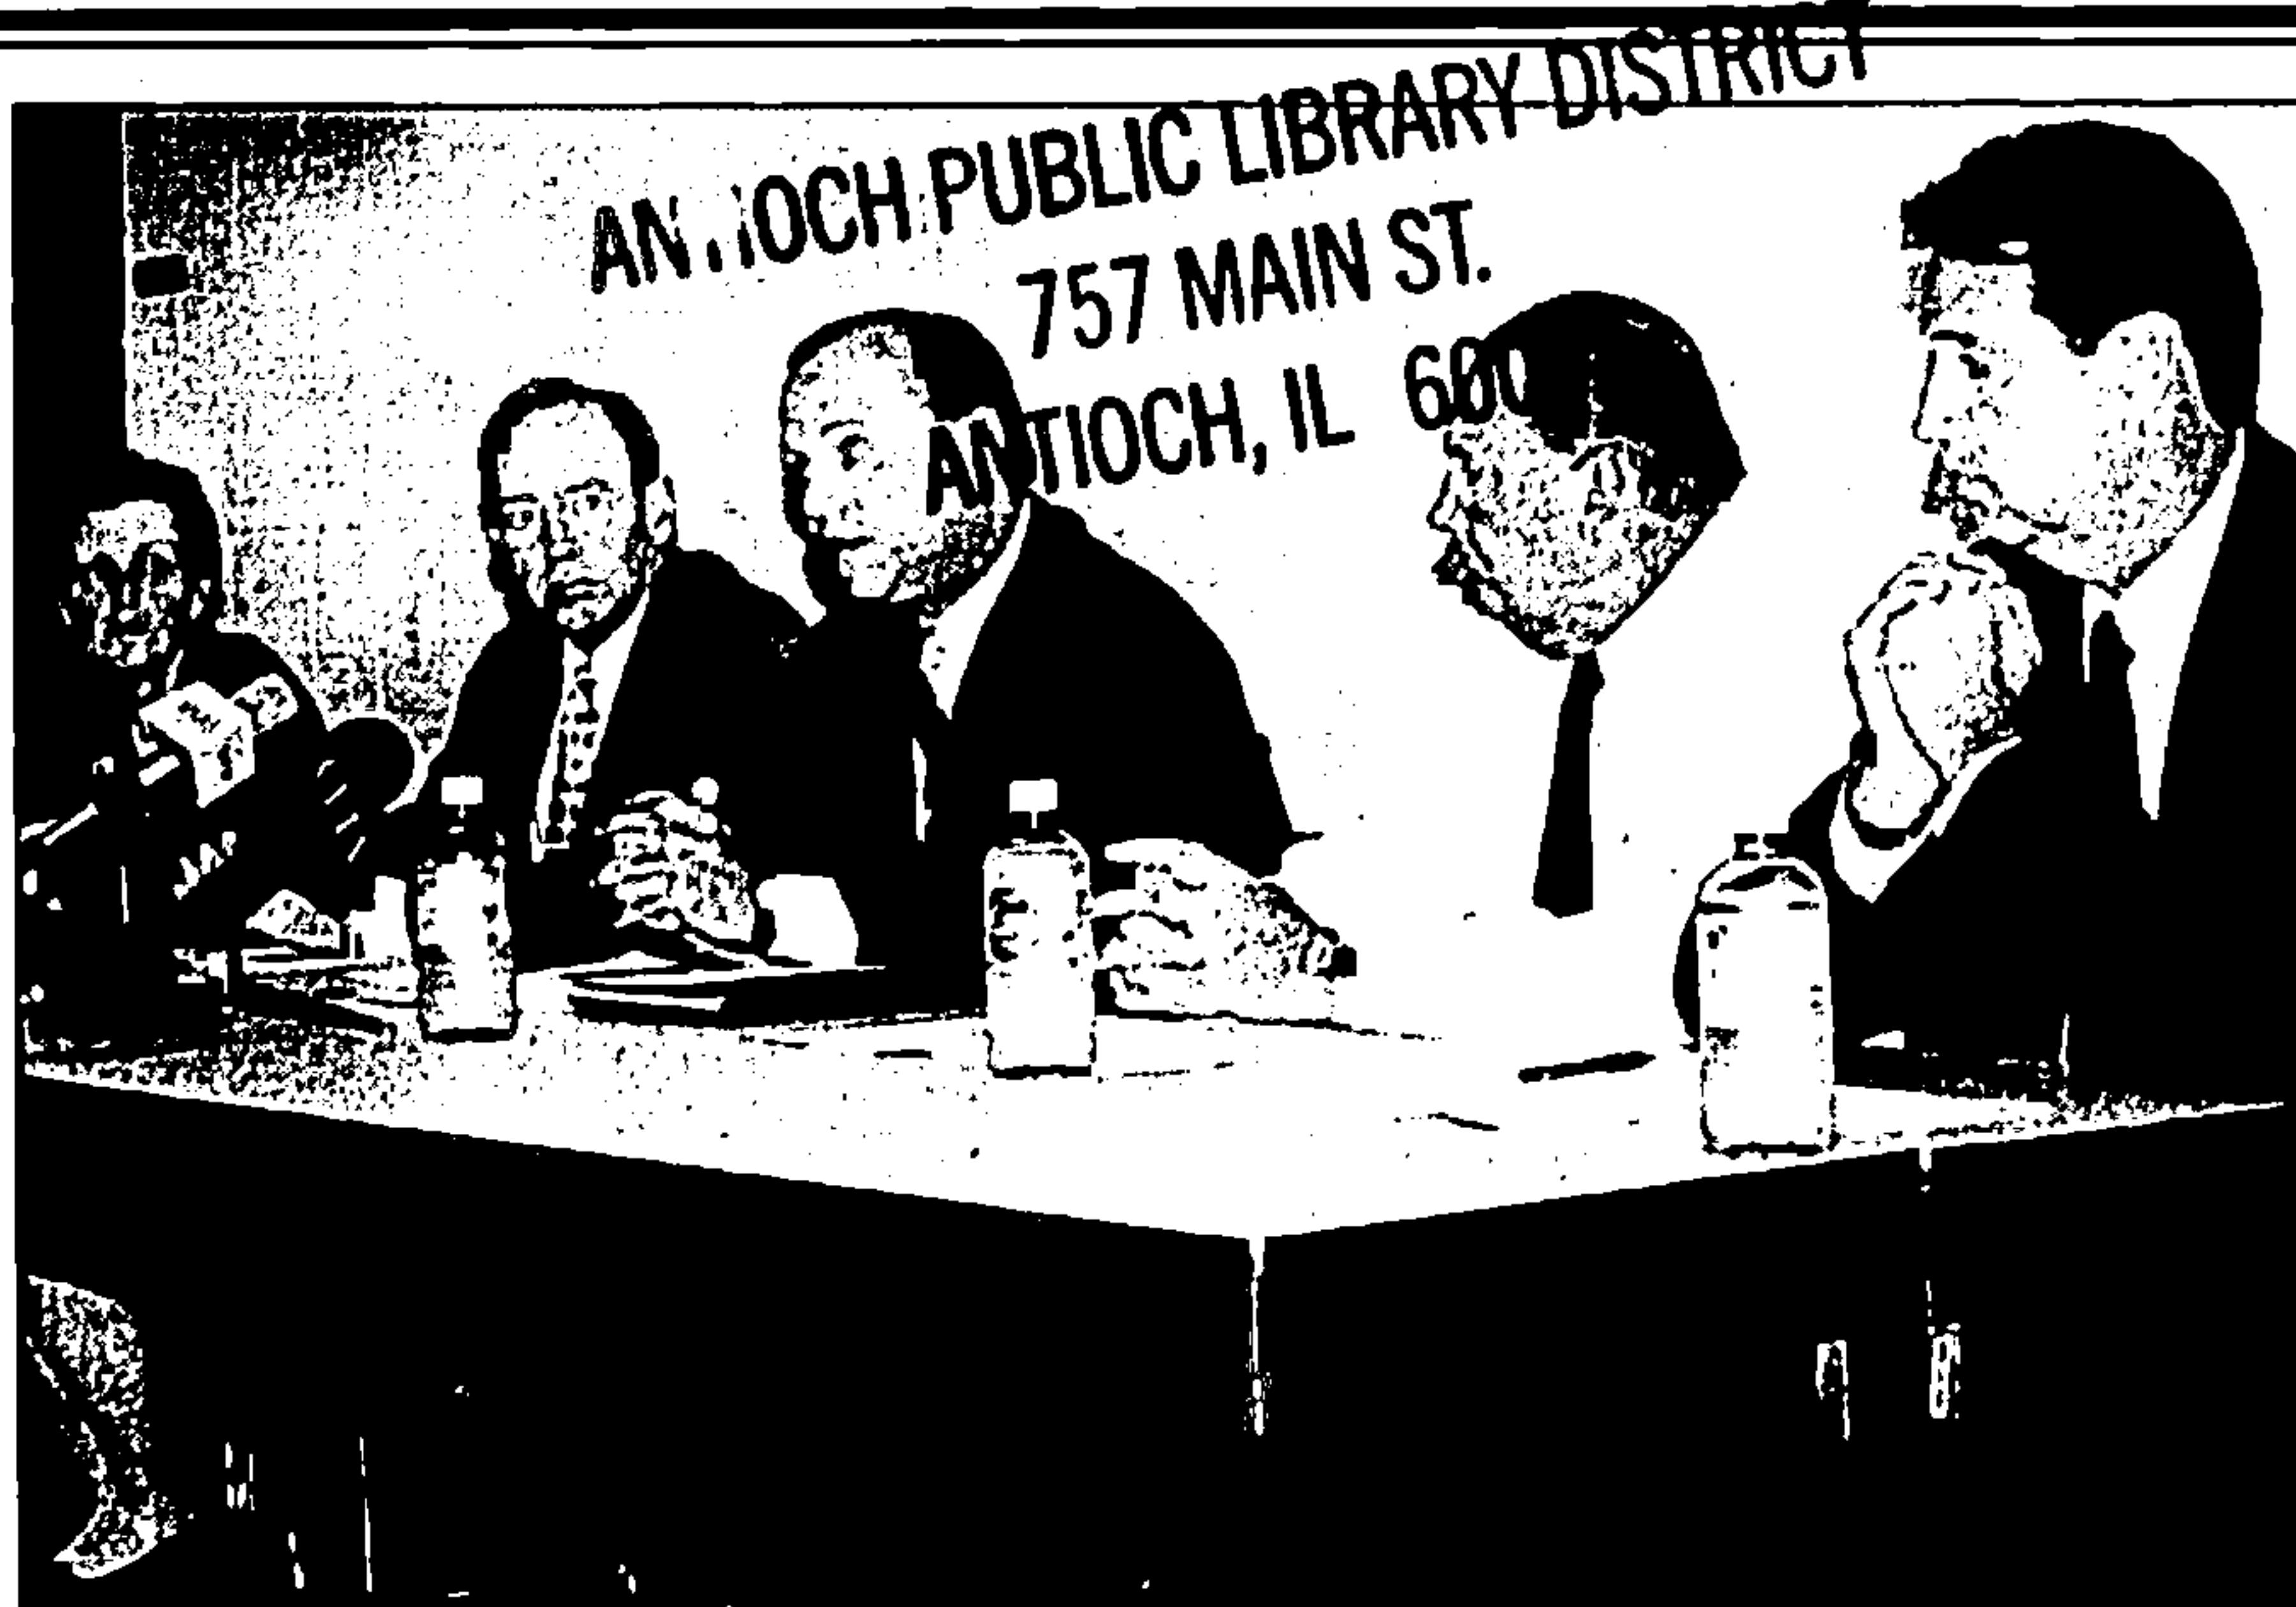

Ballot language will include a provision for raising $10 million for land acquisition.

Ray said the Open Space Committee, cochaired by John Reindl, a former county board representative, is meeting weekly.

The proposal is designed to encourage willing sellers to remove their farm land from the path of development through outright sale to the Open Space District, sell development rights or sell to a conservancy organization, noted Ray, whose family sold their farm on Erhardt Road to the Lake County Forest Preserve District two years ago.

Officials of Grayslake, Mundelein, Volo, Village of Round Lake, Round Lake Park, Wauconda and Hawthorn Woods are watching closely how the Fremont open space movement plays out.

Both Round Lake and Round Lake Park presently have extensive annexation plans that would take their boundaries deeply into Fremont, one of the last extensive rural areas of Lake County.

Round Lake school district neighbors form consortium

No specific decisions reached

By HELEN MANSFIELD
Staff Reporter

At this point, the future of Round Lake School Dist. 116 is still very much up in the air, so members of the newly formed consortium of school districts surrounding the ailing Round Lake district couldn't give any specifics as to how their coalition will provide aid during a press conference on Tuesday.

With legal representation provided by Anthony Ficarella, lead counsel of the school law group of the national firm Hinshaw and Culbertson, the attorney gave an overview of what the group hopes to accomplish on a united front.

Present were Dr. Elizabeth McDonald, superintendent of Grayslake Community High School Dist. 127; Dr. Mike Anderson, superintendent of Lake Villa School Dist. 41; Dr. Kurt Anderson, superintendent of Community Consolidated School Dist. 46, Grayslake and Dr. John Benedetti, superintendent of Grant Community High School Dist. 124, Fox Lake.

Dr. J. Michael Maloney, superintendent of Gavin School Dist. 37, Ingleside and Ronald Pazanin, superintendent of Big Hollow School Dist. 38, Ingleside, were both unable to attend.

"The purpose of this consortium is to make sure that the interests of our districts are heard loud and clear when it comes to consideration of how to resolve the current status of Round Lake School Dist. 116," said Ficarella.

He added that those in the group will do their best to pool resources and begin dialog to aid the district, but at the same time they won't attempt to manage or tell Dist. 116 how they should operate.

Ficarella said he has been in contact with the Illinois State Board of Education, Regional Superintendent of Schools Ed Gonwa and various legislators to see what can be done to avoid dissolving the district.

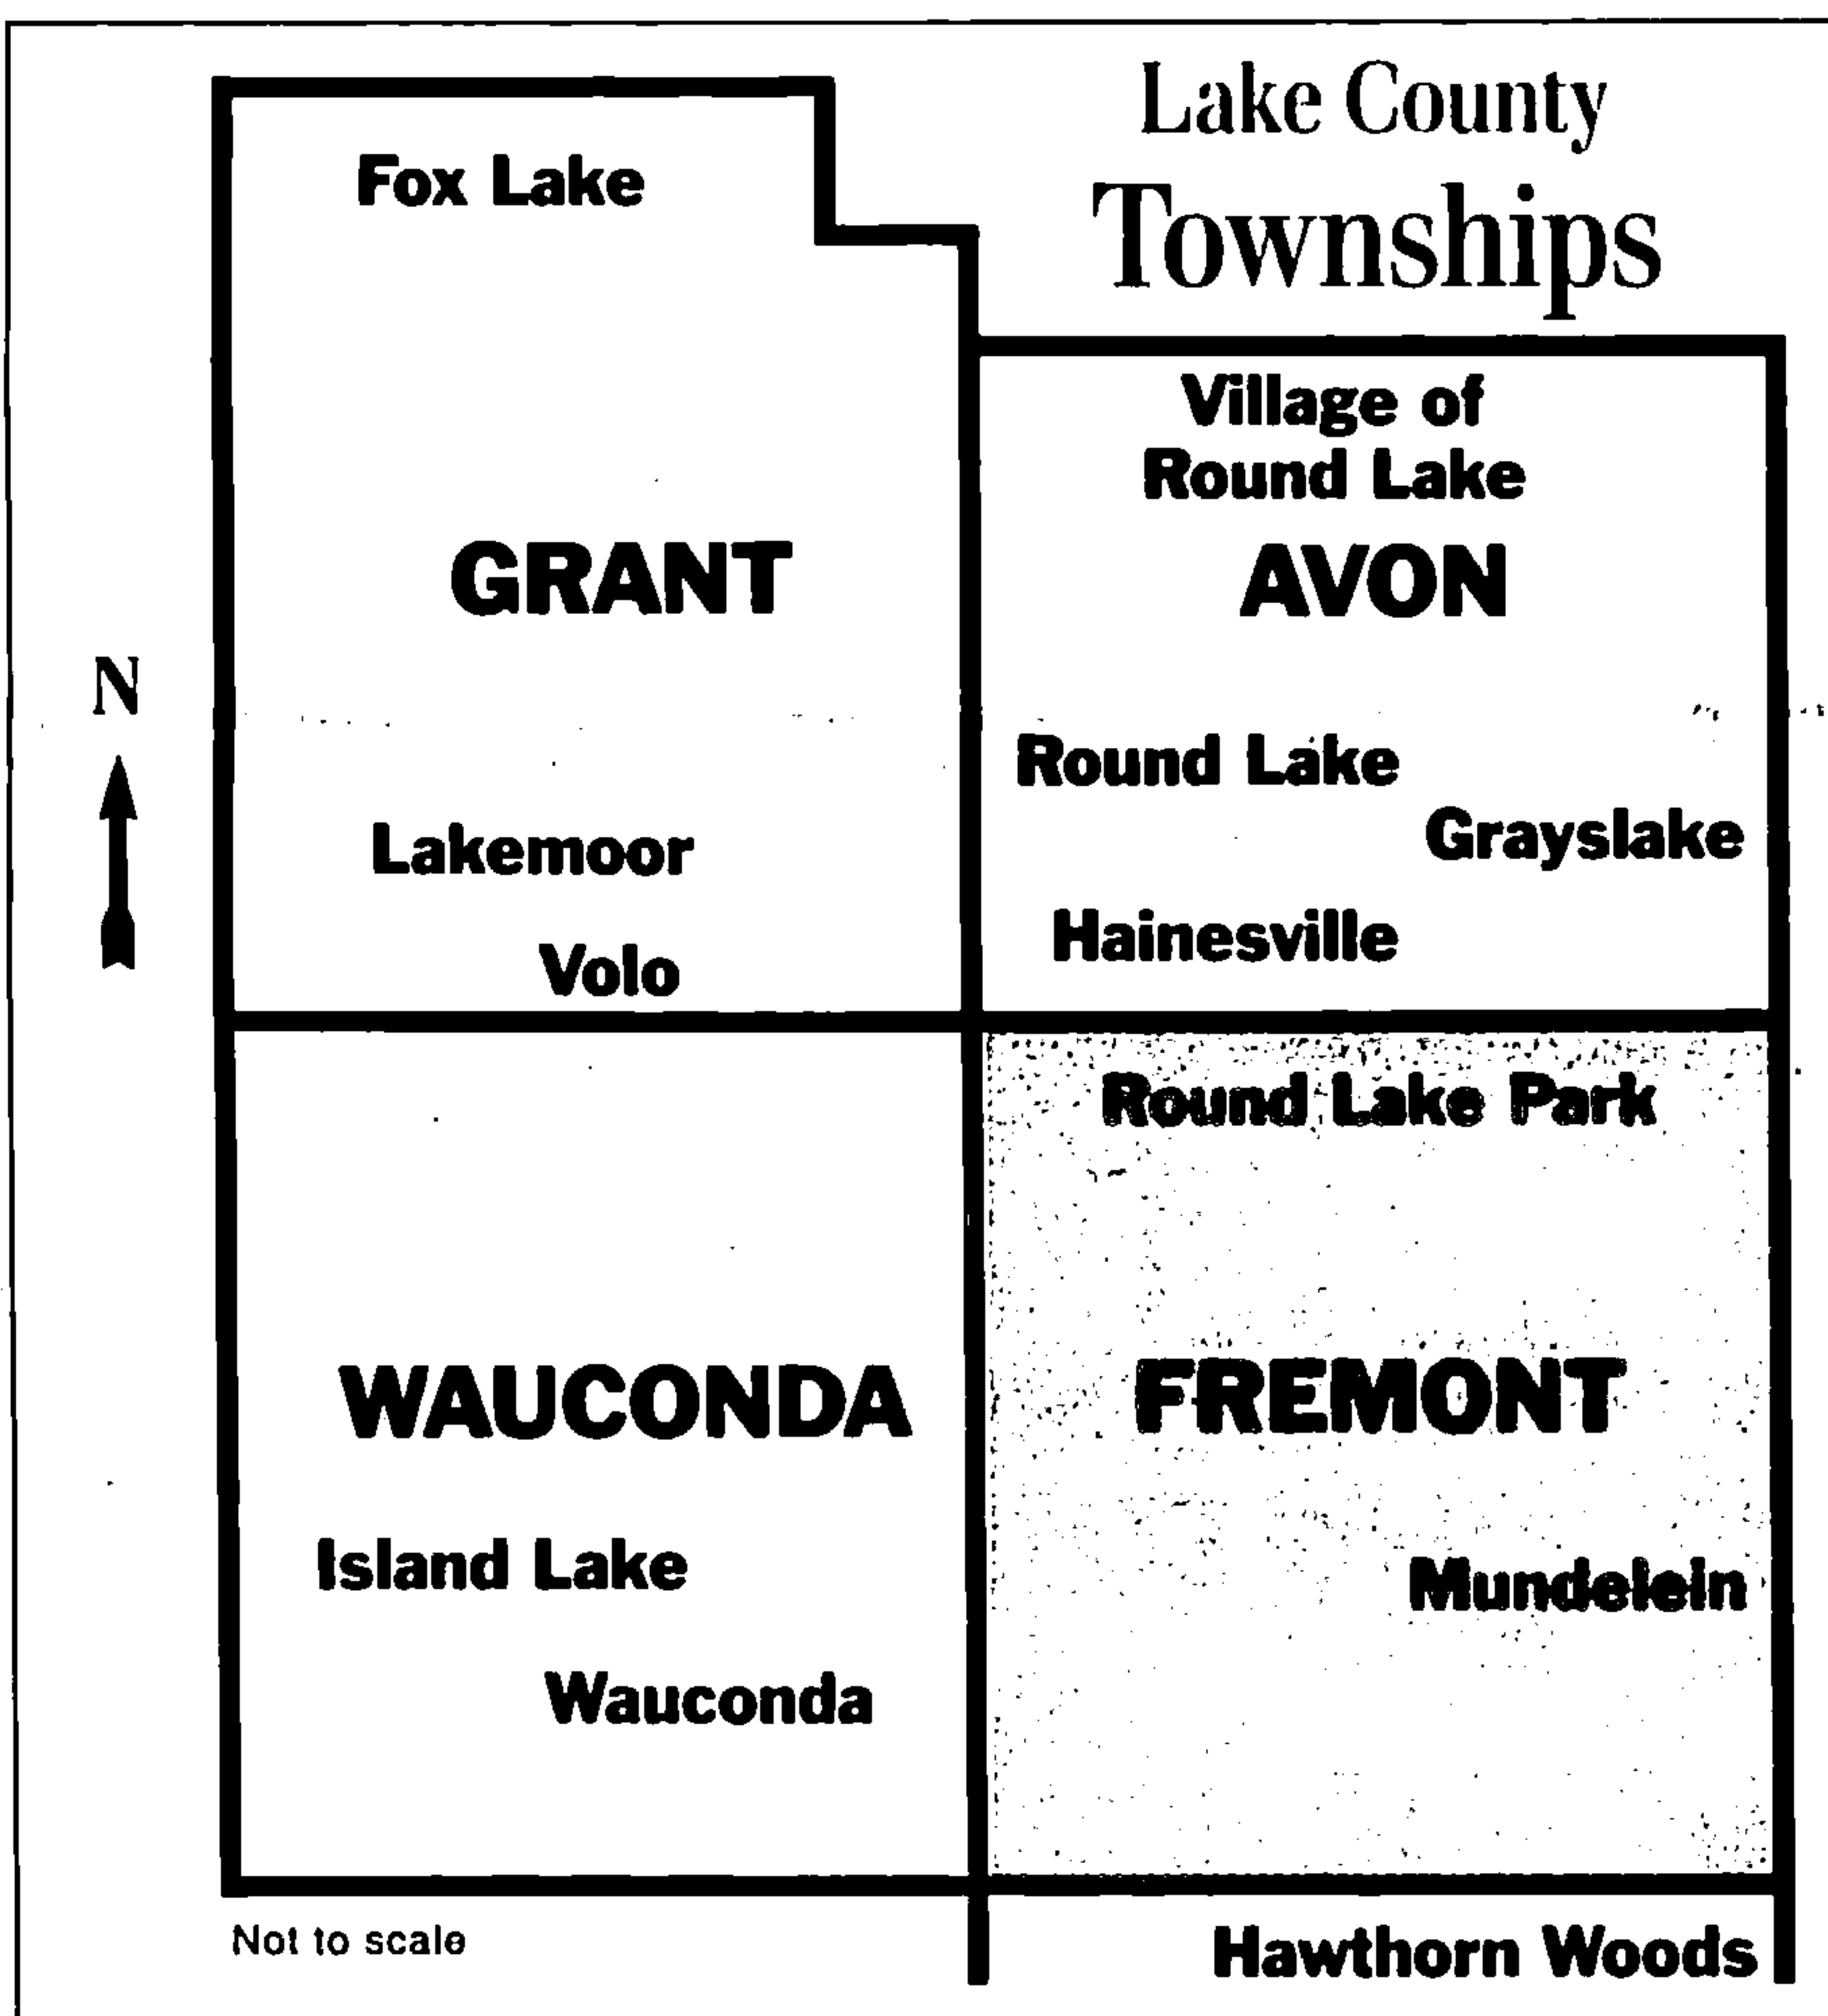

"...options boil down to dissolution of Dist. 116 and risking the possibility of ruining or, at a minimum, creating serious hardship for six school districts already coping with their own challenges versus reviving 116. It is simply in everyone's best interest to throw every ounce of energy into the latter solution," Ficarella said.

Dr. Kurt Anderson told the group that the Round Lake district has around 6500 students, more than any of the districts sitting at the table which could end up taking some or all of those students in.

Dist. 127 has a student body of 1800 students, Dist. 41, 3000 students; Dist. 46, 3400 students and Dist. 124, 1250 students.

'It is simply in everyone's best interest' to revive Dist. 116

County crops in good shape — for now

Although crops aren't in dire need of immediate rain, county farmers wouldn't turn down a little precipitation.

Greg Koeppen, public information director for the Lake County Farm Bureau, said rainfall the week of July 22 provided welcome albeit temporary relief.

"Right now, we're doing OK," Koeppen said. "The beans probably need some rain, especially with the heat that's been forecast for (the week of July 29). But a couple of weeks ago we got an inch or so at a critical time."

Not all of the county received that moisture. Koeppen said the Antioch area did not receive as much rain as more southerly spots in the county.

The bureau's rain gauge in Grayslake has recorded 13 inches of rain since April 1, with 2.56 inches of that moisture coming in July. "We had kind of a wet start; we had a lot of rain

(3.76 inches) in May," Koeppen said. "But after that it's been pretty typical."

The most beneficial precipitation is a steady day-long rainfall. The last thing farmers need is a storm that packs damaging winds or hail along with the moisture.

"Because the crops are growing so tall, wind or hail could knock them down. That would be disastrous," Koeppen said.

Cooler weather would be helpful but is no substitute for rain, Koeppen added.

Other areas of the Midwest are facing conditions more critical than those in Lake County. According to the United States Department of Agriculture, only 59 percent of the corn in the region could be rated as good to excellent. The rest rated poor to very poor.

"We need a couple of inches in the next week or two" to ensure a successful harvest, Koeppen said.

County to get funds for water planning

Gov. George H. Ryan announced approval of funding to planning commissions in northeastern Illinois for water quality management activities.

Between them, the groups will be responsible for reviewing multiple planning, permitting and construction permits in 16 Illinois counties.

"Regional planning agencies play a key role in promoting balanced responsible growth in Illinois and state government is pleased to partner with them," said Ryan.

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission (NIPC) will receive $129,303 for Facility Planning Areas (FPA) oversight in Cook, Lake, DuPage, McHenry, Will and Kane counties. FPAs determine areas to be served by community wastewater treatment facilities. Under the funding agreement for fiscal year 2002, the NIPC will conduct water quality management plan reviews for domestic wastewater NPDES permits (required for any operation that discharges into the waters of the state), as well as planning for sewers, lift stations and wastewater land treatment systems within the FPA.

Both the FPA and the lake monitoring components of the funding packages reflect Ryan's "Illinois Tomorrow" program, the voluntary initiative that seeks to protect existing natural resources as well as quality of life by working in partnership with local governments to promote responsible and balanced growth through maximum utilization of existing mechanisms.

Funding for the water quality management programs comes from federal money available under Section 604(b) of the Clean Water Act. The funding is administered through the IEPA.

Eleven-digit dialing begins in January

If you think your fingers do a lot of walking across the telephone keypad now, you're not likely to appreciate the ramifications of a new area code for Lake County.

Starting Jan. 7, all 11 phone number digits — 1, the area code and the number — will have to be dialed in order to complete a call within the 847 area code. The addition of a 224 area code to join the current 847 prefix will force the elongated dialing pattern.

The plan has raised the hackles of the Citizens Utility Board (CUB), which will challenge the 11-digit dialing rule set down by the Federal Communications Commission. CUB Associate Director Pat Clark said the board successfully argued in federal court four years ago that a new area code was unnecessary.

"(The phone companies) haven't run out of numbers," Clark said. "Four years ago we showed the Illinois Commerce Commission the phone company utility data. Only half of the 7.9 million phone numbers have been assigned to customers. The phone companies are stockpiling or hoarding the numbers."

Clark said the CUB persuaded the court to change FCC rules regarding how many numbers a phone company could stockpile. Previously, phone companies could claim blocks of 10,000 numbers; that was reduced to 1,000.

The CUB will go back to federal court to argue again that 11-digit dialing is an unnecessary inconvenience.

"It may be years before the 224 area code is actually assigned," Clark said. "But 11-digit dialing will be necessary. You'll have to dial all 11 digits even if you're calling across the street" if the CUB's argument fails.

Having two area codes in the same geographic area, a condition known as "overlay," is not uncommon. Neu Star, the administrative organization responsible for doling out blocks of numbers, may begin parceling out numbers with the 224 area code by the end of August. By the end of the year, phone companies will be able to assign those numbers.

Neu Star could not be reached for comment.

Society overlooks rental housing

In fervent pursuit of the elusive affordable housing balance, public officials and the building industry often overlook the importance of rental housing.

Does our town have enough rental units?

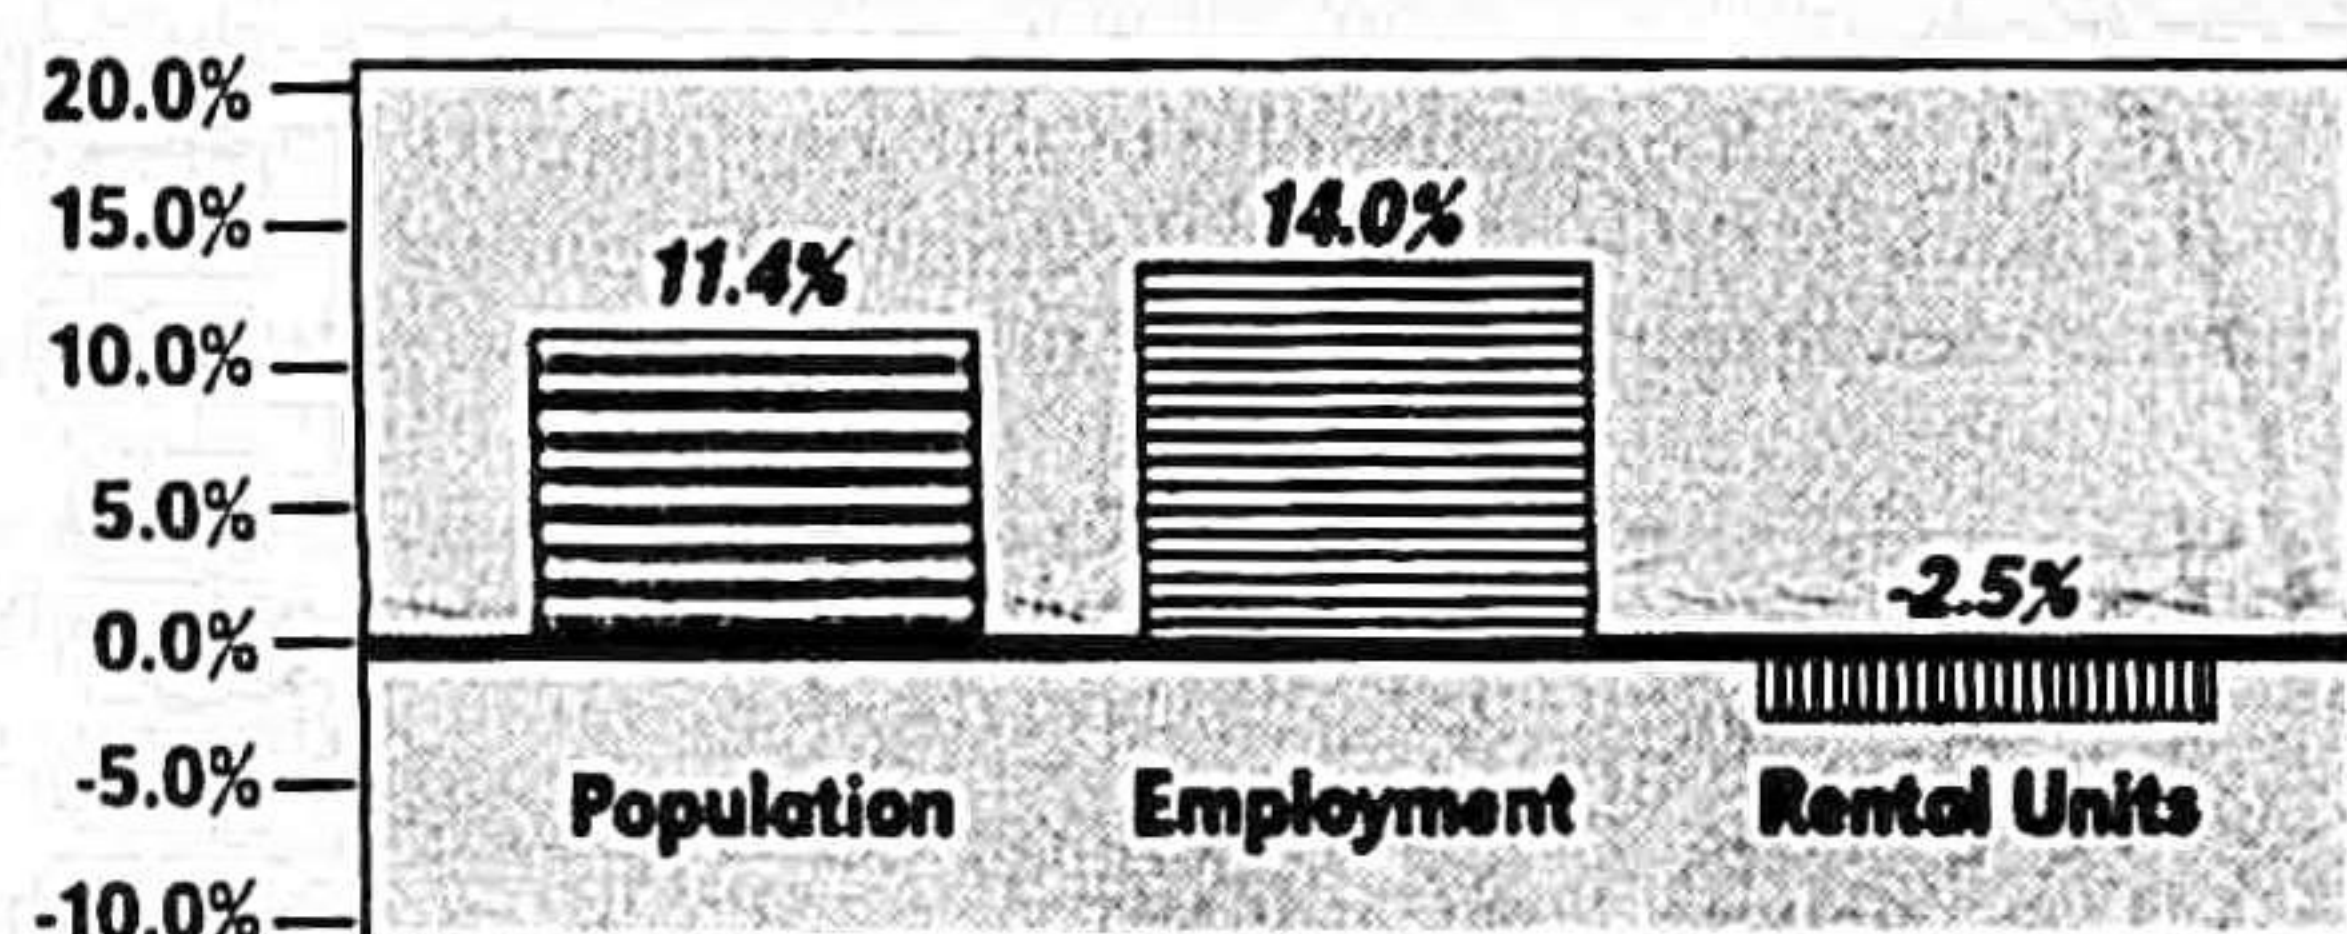

While the region's population and employment increased for the period 1990-2000, the number of rental units decreased. Young working families, in particular, find this reality a hardship. There are jobs going for the asking while availability of affordable housing continues in short supply.

Chicago Metropolis 2020, a think tank focusing on economic viability, found that more than one-third of the region's one million rental households are considered "rent burdened" because renters pay more than 30 percent of their monthly income in rent.

In a unique project, Chicago Metropolis had 100 business leaders sign a pledge to make access to affordable housing and mass transit a significant factor when making a business location decision. Put in a Lake County perspective, housing should be built near existing rail lines.

A Lake County resident who heads Chicago Metropolis 2020 called the pledge "a message that location decisions must hinge on much more than tax breaks and highway exits." George A. Ranney Jr., president and CEO of Chicago Metropolis 2020, emphasized that quality of life is important. Living near your work or living where you have access to convenient transportation to your place of employment makes for better living.

In one respect, the business leaders aim to "turn back the clock" to the days when the economic vitality of a number of Lake County communities was tied to rail transportation. The inter-urban North Shore Railway was developed after World War I to provide transportation for residents of Libertyville, Mundelein and the North Shore to Chicago's job center.

By tying affordable housing and mass transit together, the business leaders aim to dramatize what they consider the "mismatch" between affordable housing and jobs. The study organization found that only nine percent of new housing constructed between 1990 and 1995 was built within one-half mile of a Metra or CTA train station. Before 1990, about 46 percent of all housing was constructed within walking distance of a rail station.

The think tank advocates that business and local governments pay more attention to the benefits to society of the linkage between mass transit and affordable housing. The notion may be novel, but we think it scores a bullseye for making decisions on where plants and offices are built and what kind of housing is approved.

New language spoken at UCLC

As part of the back-to-school movement at University Center of Lake County (UCLC), students are adding a flock of new tech words to their education vocabulary.

Try these tongue twisters and exotic sounding words:

Asynchronous, synchronous, bandwidth, streaming video, list-serves, modems, bulletin boards.

These words are part of the language of "distance education," a combination of online courses, interactive video, correspondence and video-based courses offered at UCLC by 12 member institutions.

Designed for working adults, recent College of Lake County graduates, adults pursuing advanced degrees and non-traditional students, the University Center is all about new age higher education where electronics makes it possible to take courses "anytime, anyplace."

Many of UCLC's more than 1,000 students don't go anywhere near the temporary campuses being utilized while a permanent home is being built adjacent to the CLC Grayslake campus. They're online for lectures, assignments and class activities. Or they're "talking" to their professor by e-mail. Classmates interface with online chats.

Students and faculty come together with interactive video, seeing and hearing each other at a distance. Video-based courses are easily viewed at home or on-the-road by working adults whose job requires travel.

Higher education UCLC-style is a much different experience. There are no rah rah campus life distractions.

Currently, UCLC is housed at Lincolnshire. There are administrative offices at Vernon Hills and Waukegan.

Likes 2 airports

State Rep. Tim Osmond (R-Antioch) has his mind made up about forces grappling over expanding O'Hare Airport or building Peotone. "Do both," declares Osmond, whose legislative assignments include the House aviation committee. Plans for Peotone are viable, according to Osmond. The south suburban facility could be operational in five years, he says.

Cards for Craig

Michael J. Lowecki of James Michael, Inc., a Mundelein based landscape contracting firm, has taken on the assignment of helping a seven-year-old boy with a brain tumor land in the Guinness Book of World Records. With only a short time to live, Craig Shepard contacted the Make A Wish Foundation about building the largest collection of business cards ever assembled by one individual. Lowecki explained that only one card per company is allowed. Business cards for Craig can be sent to him c/o Make A Wish Foundation, 300 Perimeter East, Atlanta, GA 30346.

On the move

Brimming with confidence, Gary O'Reilly took over the management of a highway furniture store on Rte. 12, Fox Lake, at age 17. Despite a succession of moves, he's never left the business. And each time O'Reilly moves, it's always up. First he formed a partnership and relocated to a Round Lake shopping center. Acquiring sole ownership and after several successful years, Gary moved to S. Milwaukee Ave., Libertyville, where he founded O'Reilly's Fine Furniture. Now he's ready for another move, this time to a 91,000 square foot industrial building on E. Park Ave. (Rte. 176) that will be remodeled.

Lumber honored

Congratulations to Atty. James Lumber as honored by the Illinois Community College Trustees Assn. for 30 years service as a trustee. Lumber, a resident of Round Lake and a life-long Lake County resident, is a founding member of the College of Lake County board. His CLC tenure was interrupted for one year when he ran for Congress. He has law offices in Antioch. He is a former mayor of Round Lake.

Ballot information being provided on future Forest Preserve referendums

You probably read, as I did, that Gov. George Ryan signed into law a bill sponsored by Rep. Andrea Moore (R-Libertyville) that would provide more detailed information to voters on forest preserve district referendums.

The bill was proposed initially by Lake County Forest Preserve President Al Westerman after the failure of one of the district's ballot propositions that would have increased taxes to build and maintain more trails and add more staff to the agency. Westerman said that the ballot language was confusing and led to the defeat of the referendum.

SEEING IT THROUGH

First, let me say that I believe that the motivation to both introduce and pass such a bill was in the best interests of the taxpayers. As one who has always believed that the more accurate information that is provided to taxpayers the better, I am always confident that voters will render a sound decision when they are given all of the facts.

Having said that; however, I do have some concerns. It was reported that the new law will allow a forest preserve to include on the ballot what the money will be used for, the effect that the tax increase would have on a homeowner's tax bill, and the date of the last increase approved by voters.

Since it is a "given" that a forest preserve seeking a tax increase

PARTY LINES

PARTY LINES, THE LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS' COLUMN OF POLITICAL OPINION, IS PREPARED FROM STAFF REPORTS.

Activist targets county clerk

Eddie Washington, Democratic political activist, isn't letting up on criticism of County Clerk Willard He-lander's intervention in a 2000 rally where voter registration was taking place at a Waukegan church in violation of statutes.

Washington said aggressive registration efforts last year assured the victory of State Rep. Susan Garrett (D-Lake Forest). He said he personally registered more than 1,000 voters during the Presidential year campaign.

Accusing the county clerk of "oppressive behavior" in a letter distributed to media outlets, Washington called for the black community to throw off apathy and get more involved in politics.

Staying involved

Former Lake County Treasurer Jack "Red" Anderson can't stay away from the political burger and brew fest he started while in office. Anderson is a volunteer to make sure the annual event, now sponsored by the Citizens for Skidmore Committee, remains a summer highlight for Republicans. Staged Aug. 29 at Blarney Island, Grass Lake, the outing now is hosted by current Treasurer Bob Skidmore.

No hard feelings

Fox Lake Mayor Nancy Koske and Antioch Mayor Taso Maravellias shared a float in the Lake Villa Centennial Parade, affirming that there's no hard feelings about the job switch of two long-time Antioch employees to Fox Lake.

On own time

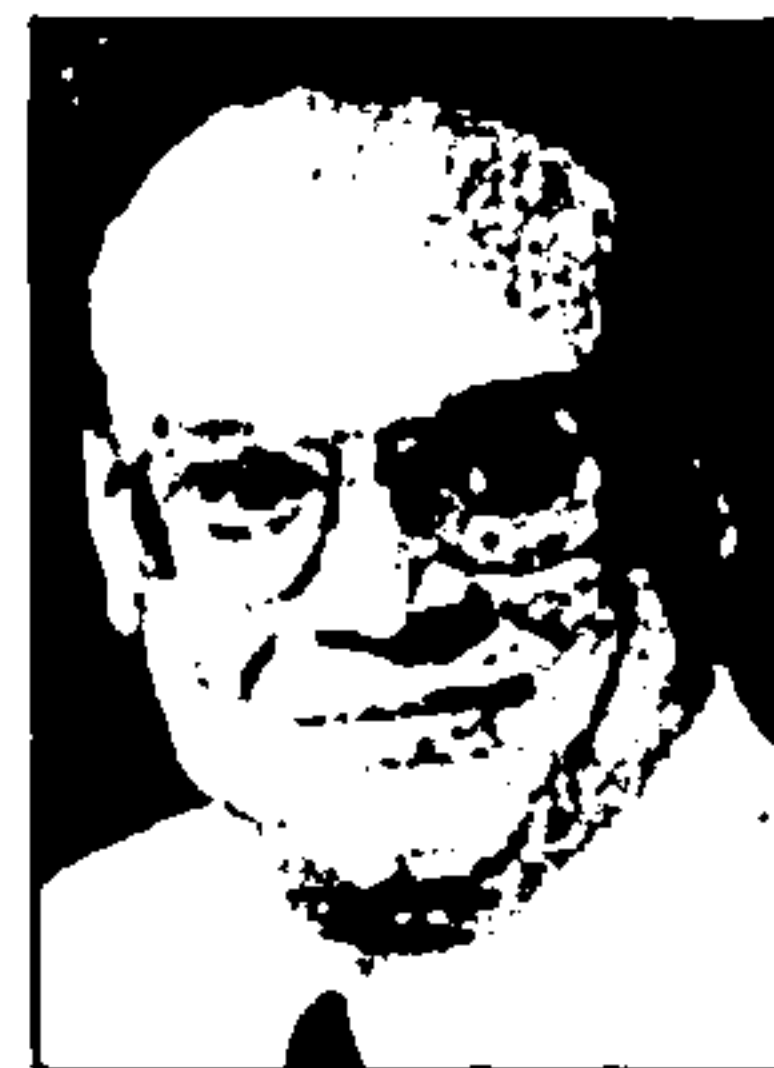

Aug. 11 is Local Officials Day at the Illinois State Fair in Springfield. That's a Saturday, so citizens can't accuse public officials of

New job

Tom Telgen has assumed new duties as executive director of the Waukegan Downtown Association, a revitalization organization. He formerly was with the Waukegan Park District. He succeeds Kandalyn Hahn.

Slow down

Despite the fact that nine out of 10 motorists are within speed limits in residential neighborhoods, Grayslake Mayor Tim Perry has put his stamp of approval on a "slow down" campaign. Officials found a unique way to curb motorists short-cutting through the business district. They tore up the streets for an improvement project.

More authority

Due to some personnel changes, Wauconda Village Administrator Fred Dierker has stepped up involvement in administration of building and zoning matters. Critics of growth and development in the Wauconda area say the additional duties give Dierker "czar-like" authority.

Wait for peaker plans

Zion stands to gain up to $1 million per year for a host agreement in connection with construction of the Sky Gen peaker power plant. Although the peaker plant operation has taken up a lot of city council time lately, Mayor Lane Harrison said no official plans have been received. Because of public questioning, a 70-foot tall turbine building was reduced to 50 feet.

Seeking a hobby

Lindenhurst Mayor Paul Baumunk, retired after more than 30 years in education, has become virtually a full-time public servant, sometimes arriving at the office as early as 7 a.m. The mayor joked that the village staff probably thinks he should get a hobby. "I'm not sure if they're used to seeing me so much," Baumunk added.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Potential hazard

To all Lake County voters
We feel you would be interested in knowing about a petition currently in front of your Forest Preserve Board.

The Village of Antioch has approached the Lake County Forest Preserve Board asking for a sewer easement for the formerly known, Timber Lake Campground, also known as the Glick property, which borders Rte. 45 and Miller Rd. south of Rte. 173.

This sewer line is an environmental hazard based on its proximity to the lake and adjacent wetlands. It is not in the best interest of the Forest Preserve to grant easements to municipalities so they can increase population and income from a development.

We did not approve the referendum to increase our real estate taxes to allow the Forest Preserve to support development.

We urge the County Board to deny the petition, which is not a hardship on any existing properties.

Reduce demand

While new energy supplies certainly are needed, a supply-side-only approach won't work, especially when it comes to electricity.

For one, siting new power plants, whether they're fired by coal, natural gas or a nuclear reaction, is increasingly difficult. Few people want a noisy pollution-spewing power plant built in their community. Opposition to plant construction will become even stronger when people realize that the power may be sold to the highest bidder instead of to local consumers.

Transmission of electricity presents an even bigger dilemma. Today's system was built to serve the needs of monopoly utilities. It's inadequate to handle all the anticipated new power flows in a competitive electricity marketplace. But nobody in Illinois wants an ugly high-voltage line running through their community, especially if it's being built to ship power from Ohio to Wisconsin. Who's going to pay for it?

That's why our state energy policy should focus first on the demand side of the supply/demand equation. Reducing demand for electricity is always cleaner and often more cost-effective in the long run than building new power plants and transmission lines. Lower electricity usage will help prevent skyrocketing market prices.

On the supply side, state government policy should promote innovative technologies that may not be immediate winners in the marketplace, but are the right answers in the long run. With a little push (from regulatory policies, tax incentives, and state procurement), Illinois could begin to develop its tremendous potential for renewable resources, such as biomass, wind, and solar power. Investment in these technologies would create jobs and support economic development throughout the state.

Coming together

I hosted a grant seminar at the Greenbelt Cultural Center in North Chicago in the hopes of providing access to state agencies for municipalities, schools and not-for-profit organizations in the 59th District. Thirteen state agencies, ranging from the Department of Transportation to Public Aid and the Department of Human Services, sent representatives who were able to speak one-on-one with members of the community and assist them in obtaining state grant money.

Due to the overwhelming turnout of 200 representatives from organizations throughout Lake County, I am able to say, once again, how dedicated and hard working the citizens, organizations and communities I represent are in providing for and improving the quality of life in Lake County. Both the agency representatives and the attendees spoke highly of the interaction, bringing people one step closer to our state government in Springfield and well-deserved assistance to the rapidly growing population of Lake County.

Letters welcome

Letters to the editor are welcome. They should be on topics of general interest, approximately 250 words or less. All letters must be signed, and contain a home address and telephone number. The editor reserves the right to condense all letters.

Joe Louis and I were sole-mates briefly

We were watching a biography on television, the life of the great prizefighter Joe Louis.

I turned to my wife: "Did I ever tell you my Joe Louis story?"
"Did you fight him?" she asked, facetiously.

"No, no, no," I said. "I'm not that crazy. We had a shoeshine together."

It was back in the 1960s when I was the young sports editor of the Kenosha newspaper. Joe Louis was retired from boxing and reduced to traveling around the country refereeing professional wrestling matches.

One of the promoters of the Kenosha charade was Fred, a friend who owned a shoe store.

Fred phoned me: "Joe Louis is here. Come over and interview him."

I did, and Joe Louis and I sat side-by-side on those elevated chairs used for shoeshines and chatted.

It wasn't much of an interview because Joe gave me nothing but one-word answers. "Yup." "Nope." But he was very cordial, a likable guy.

That night at the matches, sometimes when a wrestler got out of hand Joe would cock a fist, the wrestler would back off and the crowd would cheer.

THE PFARR CORNER

Jerry Pfarr

At this point I want to dispel any suggestion that I'm a boxing fan. It's an ugly, brutal, inhuman so-called sport that should be banned altogether.

As Sugar Ray Robinson said, "Hurting people is my business."

And as Muhammad Ali said on the occasion of one of his retirements: "There are more pleasant things to do than beat up on people."

Joe Louis died in 1981 at the age of 67. He was the heavyweight champion from 1937 to 1949. He fought often, defending his title 25 times. He finally was beaten by Rocky Marciano and went into retirement.

Just as people remember where they were when Pearl Harbor was bombed and when President Kennedy was assassinated, I remember listening to the Marciano-Louis fight on the car radio while driving home from Janesville after covering a football game. It was sad to hear the great Joe Louis was being beaten, but the effervescent Marciano also became a popular champion and won 49 fights before retiring undefeated. Tragically, while still a young man, he was killed in an air crash.

So my shoeshine with Joe Louis was one of those brushes with the famous that we sort of savor. We'd like to have a movie of them as Woody Allen did with his clever film, "Zelig."

It's about an ordinary little guy named Leonard Zelig who manages to pop up in photographs with a variety of famous people, including William Randolph Hearst, Red Grange, Al Capone, F. Scott Fitzgerald, Lou Gehrig, Fanny Brice, and even Adolph Hitler.

The same gimmick was used in the Tom Hanks movie, "Forrest Gump," in which the low-IQ Forrest winds up at various times in film footage with Elvis Presley, JFK, Lyndon Johnson and Richard Nixon.

Yes, life is like a box of chocolates. In my own box, through the years, Marciano came to town and invited me out to dinner, I had lunch with Jesse Owens, cocktails with Dick and Pat Nixon, and a golf chat with Jack Nicklaus.

I'll spare you the details and further name-dropping unless Hollywood decides to make a movie about me.

Voters do know the difference between acquiring public lands and spending public funds for maintenance. I may be talking to different people than some of the district commissioners, but I found many who voted with fervor to purchase more public land because they thought it prudent to buy before land became more scarce and prices escalate. Many of those same people said the need to buy land was the first priority and the maintenance could come later, and that is why the second referendum failed.

It is no secret that some of the public has disapproved of the high price of some maintenance projects and thought it wise to "put the brakes on."

Editor's note: John Matijevich will continue his look next week at implications of the news providing for more ballot information for forest preserve referenda.

would include information that would be favorable towards passage of the referendum, such information may not always be "gospel."

For example, if the ballot information said that the monies would be spent for a specific purpose, and voters approved the issue based on that information, what happens afterward if the taxing body then decides to spend some of it in different ways? Would the district commissioners be held liable? I don't think so.

By the way, it wouldn't be the first time that a taxing body spent funds in ways other than they indicated while a referendum was being considered.

It was just a couple of years ago when voters in Waukegan were infuriated when a park district issue was approved and salary holiday bonuses were passed out shortly after the referendum vote was official.

Westerman said that we have proven that people want the land that the district has purchased, but now we also have to do maintenance on it. As one who strongly supported the bond issues to purchase more forest preserve land, I agree that the public has spoken.

Feeling sorry for a child can do a lot to hurt him!

Hi Dr. Singer,

I saw your column last week and thought there was something more you might address. I have these thoughts because we also have a neighbor who has a child like the one you wrote about but much worse. You described kids who were just acting out and misbehaving. The little girl next door to us is the rudest thing I have ever come across. Even to adults she doesn't know. She verbally jumps on her mother in a nasty way, way too often, while her mother is trying to speak to other people. The aggravating part is that this kid has been diagnosed with sensory integration and attention deficit and therefore, her parents do not put a stop to anything she does. They have also seen to it that her work in school has been limited and no one there is allowed to even remotely discipline her. You can imagine how that goes. It's as though they feel sorry for her and therefore, do not even stop her nasty mouth when it is aimed at them. She is getting more and more rude as she gets older and it is just aggravating to watch. I have kids too and I discipline them all the time. It is important to do that. I cannot even imagine telling someone else not to stop their bad behavior. I guess I cannot understand how any parent can let behavior like this go! Please help me understand this. G.R.

Hi G.R.,

I want to explain how this happens and also tell you a little bit about why it is so wrong for any parent to approach a "diagnosed" child that way. I too have had lots and lots of kids in my office who have been diagnosed with SI (sensory integration), BD (behavior disorder), LD (learning disability), ADHD (attention deficit hyperactivity disorder), etc. There are so many different ones today, you have to know your alphabet pretty well! I have also seen parents back down and back off from kids who have these symptoms and problems. I understand why they do it, which I will explain in a minute, but I do not agree with anyone doing it that way. I believe it is horrendously bad and dangerous for the child and parents when anyone backs away from discipline and/or work based on a diagnosis.

You have to understand that when a child is diagnosed with some condition, three things happen immediately. First, the child sees him or herself differently. Kids see themselves as damaged somehow when they get these labels. I've talked to many of them about it. Because these labels are presented as life long and something inherent about the child, these kids do take to heart that this is a permanent and crippling state of affairs. The horrible part is, even though they see it that way, it doesn't have to be, if certain steps are taken and unfortunately many of them never get to experience those steps. The second thing that happens is that parents see their kids differently after one of those labels gets placed. Now, the parents see that child as fragile and breakable and needing to be protected and handled carefully. So, now parents start to back off of yelling, discipline and everything else that could be construed as being "mean."

PARENT'S PLACE

They tell other adults involved with the child to be soft. The child realizes now that anything goes and accommodates that very well! So, parents are backing off out of pity for the child and somehow feeling responsible for the "defect" within the child. This gets in the way of any form of discipline at all. Also, what happens now is the lessening of any work difficulty. Parents and teachers both see to it that work load and difficulty level is decreased to make the stress less on the already "burdened" child. I have written about this over and over again in my columns. Taking away the challenge is the wrong thing to do. It makes the symptoms get worse and also takes away any chance that child has for good learning and life skills and overcoming their symptoms. Even though it may be easy for you to get angry at parents and teachers for doing this, you have to understand that they feel they are doing it in the best interest of the child and because they care about the child. I feel it is my job to let them know gently that this is not in the best interest of anyone to do this to a child. The third thing that happens is the saddest of all and is the sum total of the other two I mentioned. The child, who is now labeled and free of any real discipline and free of any work or frustration, now begins to believe that the rest of life will be equally as easy and the other people they meet will treat them with the same careful treatment that well-meaning parents and teachers have all along. This is when the fireworks really start to fly. I believe these kids get set up to be "crippled" all along, once that label has been placed. The really aggravating thing for me is that it does not have to be that way. These symptoms are easily eradicated in most cases. Parents just have to want to do the work to get there and to not be afraid of the challenge and getting some flack in their faces from these kids. I had a mom in my office the other day who put it beautifully and if I could get every parent on this planet thinking like she does, I believe we would virtually see an end to these horrible labels and diagnoses. She said, "I know I am not popular when I use discipline with my child, but I don't care how he sees me. It is my job to train him right, not to be his friend or to be popular with him." She wanted every bit of behavior changing information I could train her in! Because of that viewpoint, that kid will make it just fine. And trust me, this mom has plenty she could feel sorry for him about. He has been labeled and held back in school, so this mom could have reasons to feel sorry for him and fall prey to that seductive pain and feeling sorry that other parents do fall prey to every day in our country.

Don't get me wrong! I do believe in the symptoms of all of the disorders I mentioned above.

I believe those symptoms do exist. I believe in processing based distractibility and sensory problems. I believe in habit-based behavior and attention problems. Where I differ from other professionals and most of the books out there is that I do not believe in the labeling process and I also don't believe in backing down from work, discipline and reality responses toward these kids because of a weakness they have. Instead of backing off, I believe in helping to supportively push them through the tough stuff to help them learn to cope with it and get past it. I believe in building up those weaknesses through sheer will. And it does work. If you repetitively train the opposite of the symptom through practice, you have a whole different kid on the other side. I know this works because each time I see one of these kids who has been labeled with one of these supposedly "life-long, permanent, unfixable, character based" problems, I eradicate symptoms completely, by practicing the opposite habits. Just remember, if something never gets practiced right, it never works right. These kids are never truly getting the chance to practice their weak skills right, because adults are rushing in to take away the practice, in the interest of making these kids more comfortable. These kids who are getting less work and less stress and less distraction because of their "disability" or "sensory issues" are never getting to practice the tough stuff, so they never get good at it. One other thing I do is make them work right through their frustration and train parents in how to control their behavior during that frustration so these kids can ultimately learn how to deal with their own frustration and still be successful in spite of it. This is imperative to do. These contrived, set up, situations in which frustration never comes are horribly bad for the child. Not only do they never challenge the child's brain, but they also give these kids a very false picture of what it is like to work. It won't stay frustration-less as life goes on and if they are not equipped to handle frustration effectively, someday they will crash and burn. You want to talk about bad feelings in parents. That is when the real pain truly starts and then it is too late to do anything about it. Watching an adult "child" who cannot handle anything because they never got the chance to take it on when they were in their parent's loving care. That is truly heartbreaking and I have seen it many times. When they are little or young you have plenty you can do about it. If they never practice, they never learn to change it and will always react the same unhealthy way. I teach them and their parents how to practice the opposite. And I teach parents how to get through it without stopping the normal, natural process of appropriately reacting to the child's frustration.

It is very exciting to see these kids the 1st time they are able to do the work successfully and stay cool at the same time. They are equally as excited about it, because now we have shown them that they can do it, they can handle it and they are not permanently damaged. They can be in control of themselves regardless of what they have been labeled. As long as parents keep going with the right responses and don't fall back into old patterns, kids keep learning and growing. The tremendous relief in parents to see their kids be able to handle frustration and handle work and stay on task and behave appropriate is like lifting rocks off of their backs and it is fun and wonderful! It is my favorite part of what I do!

The best example that I can come up with to illustrate what I am saying is riding a bike. Let's say that your child is very weak in trying to ride the bike the 1st time. He cries. He says he doesn't want to do it. He falls on his 1st try. A lot of parents would let him stop riding. They would take away the painful object. The thing that caused all the stress. They may also think that another parent who forced his child back on the bike is a monster and how could he do that to his child? Those of you who know me, know that I am more in favor of the way the 2nd parent did it. I wouldn't be telling that parent to tape his kid to the bike or threaten punishment if he didn't do it right, but I would be absolutely in favor of getting that kid right back on that bike and finding a way to start out slow and supported, but through practice, become increasingly more independent. That practice is what works. Yes it is scary. Yes it can be painful. But, ultimately, it is the thing that makes all of us become strong and successful at anything. If we give it up because it hurts or because it's hard or because we are acting out about it, we will never get it. We will ultimately become the weakness we have not practiced.

It frustrates me as much as it frustrates you which is why I do what I do. I will not stop saying these things publicly until I have reached every parent and teacher I can get to, to change their hearts and minds. Most parents who come to me, come in believing in labels and believing in permanent weakness and character flaws in their kids. I help them see that what they are dealing with, in most cases, is nothing more than long-lived bad habits that need opposite practice to disappear. They usually don't completely believe me at the beginning, but by the middle and certainly by the end, they are amazed at how they used to see things. Now, they see their child as a capable human being who can take things on and get past them.

Dr. Sherri Singer is a licensed clinical psychologist and childhood behavior specialist. She regularly works in person with many readers of this column, helping them to significantly improve their kid's behavior and processing skills. New to Dr. Singer's practice is her very powerful "Tic Mark System of Behavior Improvement in Kids." This system has promoted unbelievably fast behavior change both at home and school with very little work from parents and teachers. Dr. Singer continues to help kids with improving focus and processing in her Total Success and Pace Program. For an appointment, call 847-577-8832 or 708-962-2549.

LAKELAND NEWSPAPERS

What would you do if your doctor said nothing more could be done for you?

Vickie Girard called CTCA.

| Diagnosed as terminal, Vickie came to CTCA for hope. That was eight years ago.

Vickie heard the worst from doctors she consulted after being diagnosed with stage four breast cancer that had metastasized to her bones.

Four different doctors at four different hospitals said she would have six months to live. That was when her husband saw an ad on television and urged her to make just one more phone call. She called Cancer Treatment Centers of America.

It was a phone call that changed her life.

From CTCA, she got the nutritional, emotional and spiritual support she needed, but there was much more. She also got the best medical treatment cancer-fighting technology had to offer. Considered experimental at the time by her insurance company, she received a bone marrow transplant that saved her life.*

Vickie was not alone. There are others. In fact, many patients who come to CTCA have already heard the worst from another hospital when they still have a treatable disease.

Today, Vickie Girard is an inspirational author and speaker. Traveling across the country, she speaks to hundreds of people at a time, spreading her message of 'where there is life, there is hope.' Her book "There's No Place Like Hope," available in bookstores nationwide, is a first-person resource for those battling cancer.

If you or a loved one are currently fighting cancer, call oncology information specialist Doug White at 1-800-577-1255 to find out how CTCA can help you in your battle.

No case is typical. You should not expect to experience these results.*

Gurnee Days 2001

Gurnee Days begin August 9

The Gurnee Days Corporation, a not-for-profit organization of volunteers, has been planning and orchestrating the annual Gurnee Days celebration for 29 years. The upcoming Gurnee Days festivities will be held the second full weekend of August—Thursday, August 9, through Sunday, August 12, 2001. The theme is "Gurnee Celebrates America."

The event is funded by cash or in kind contributions from area businesses, individuals, and civic organizations. Without their support, Gurnee Days would not be possible.

Traditionally, the celebration begins with a Thursday evening Testimonial Dinner honoring Gurnee individuals or couples who have made significant contributions to the community. This year's honoree is Virginia Elsbury.

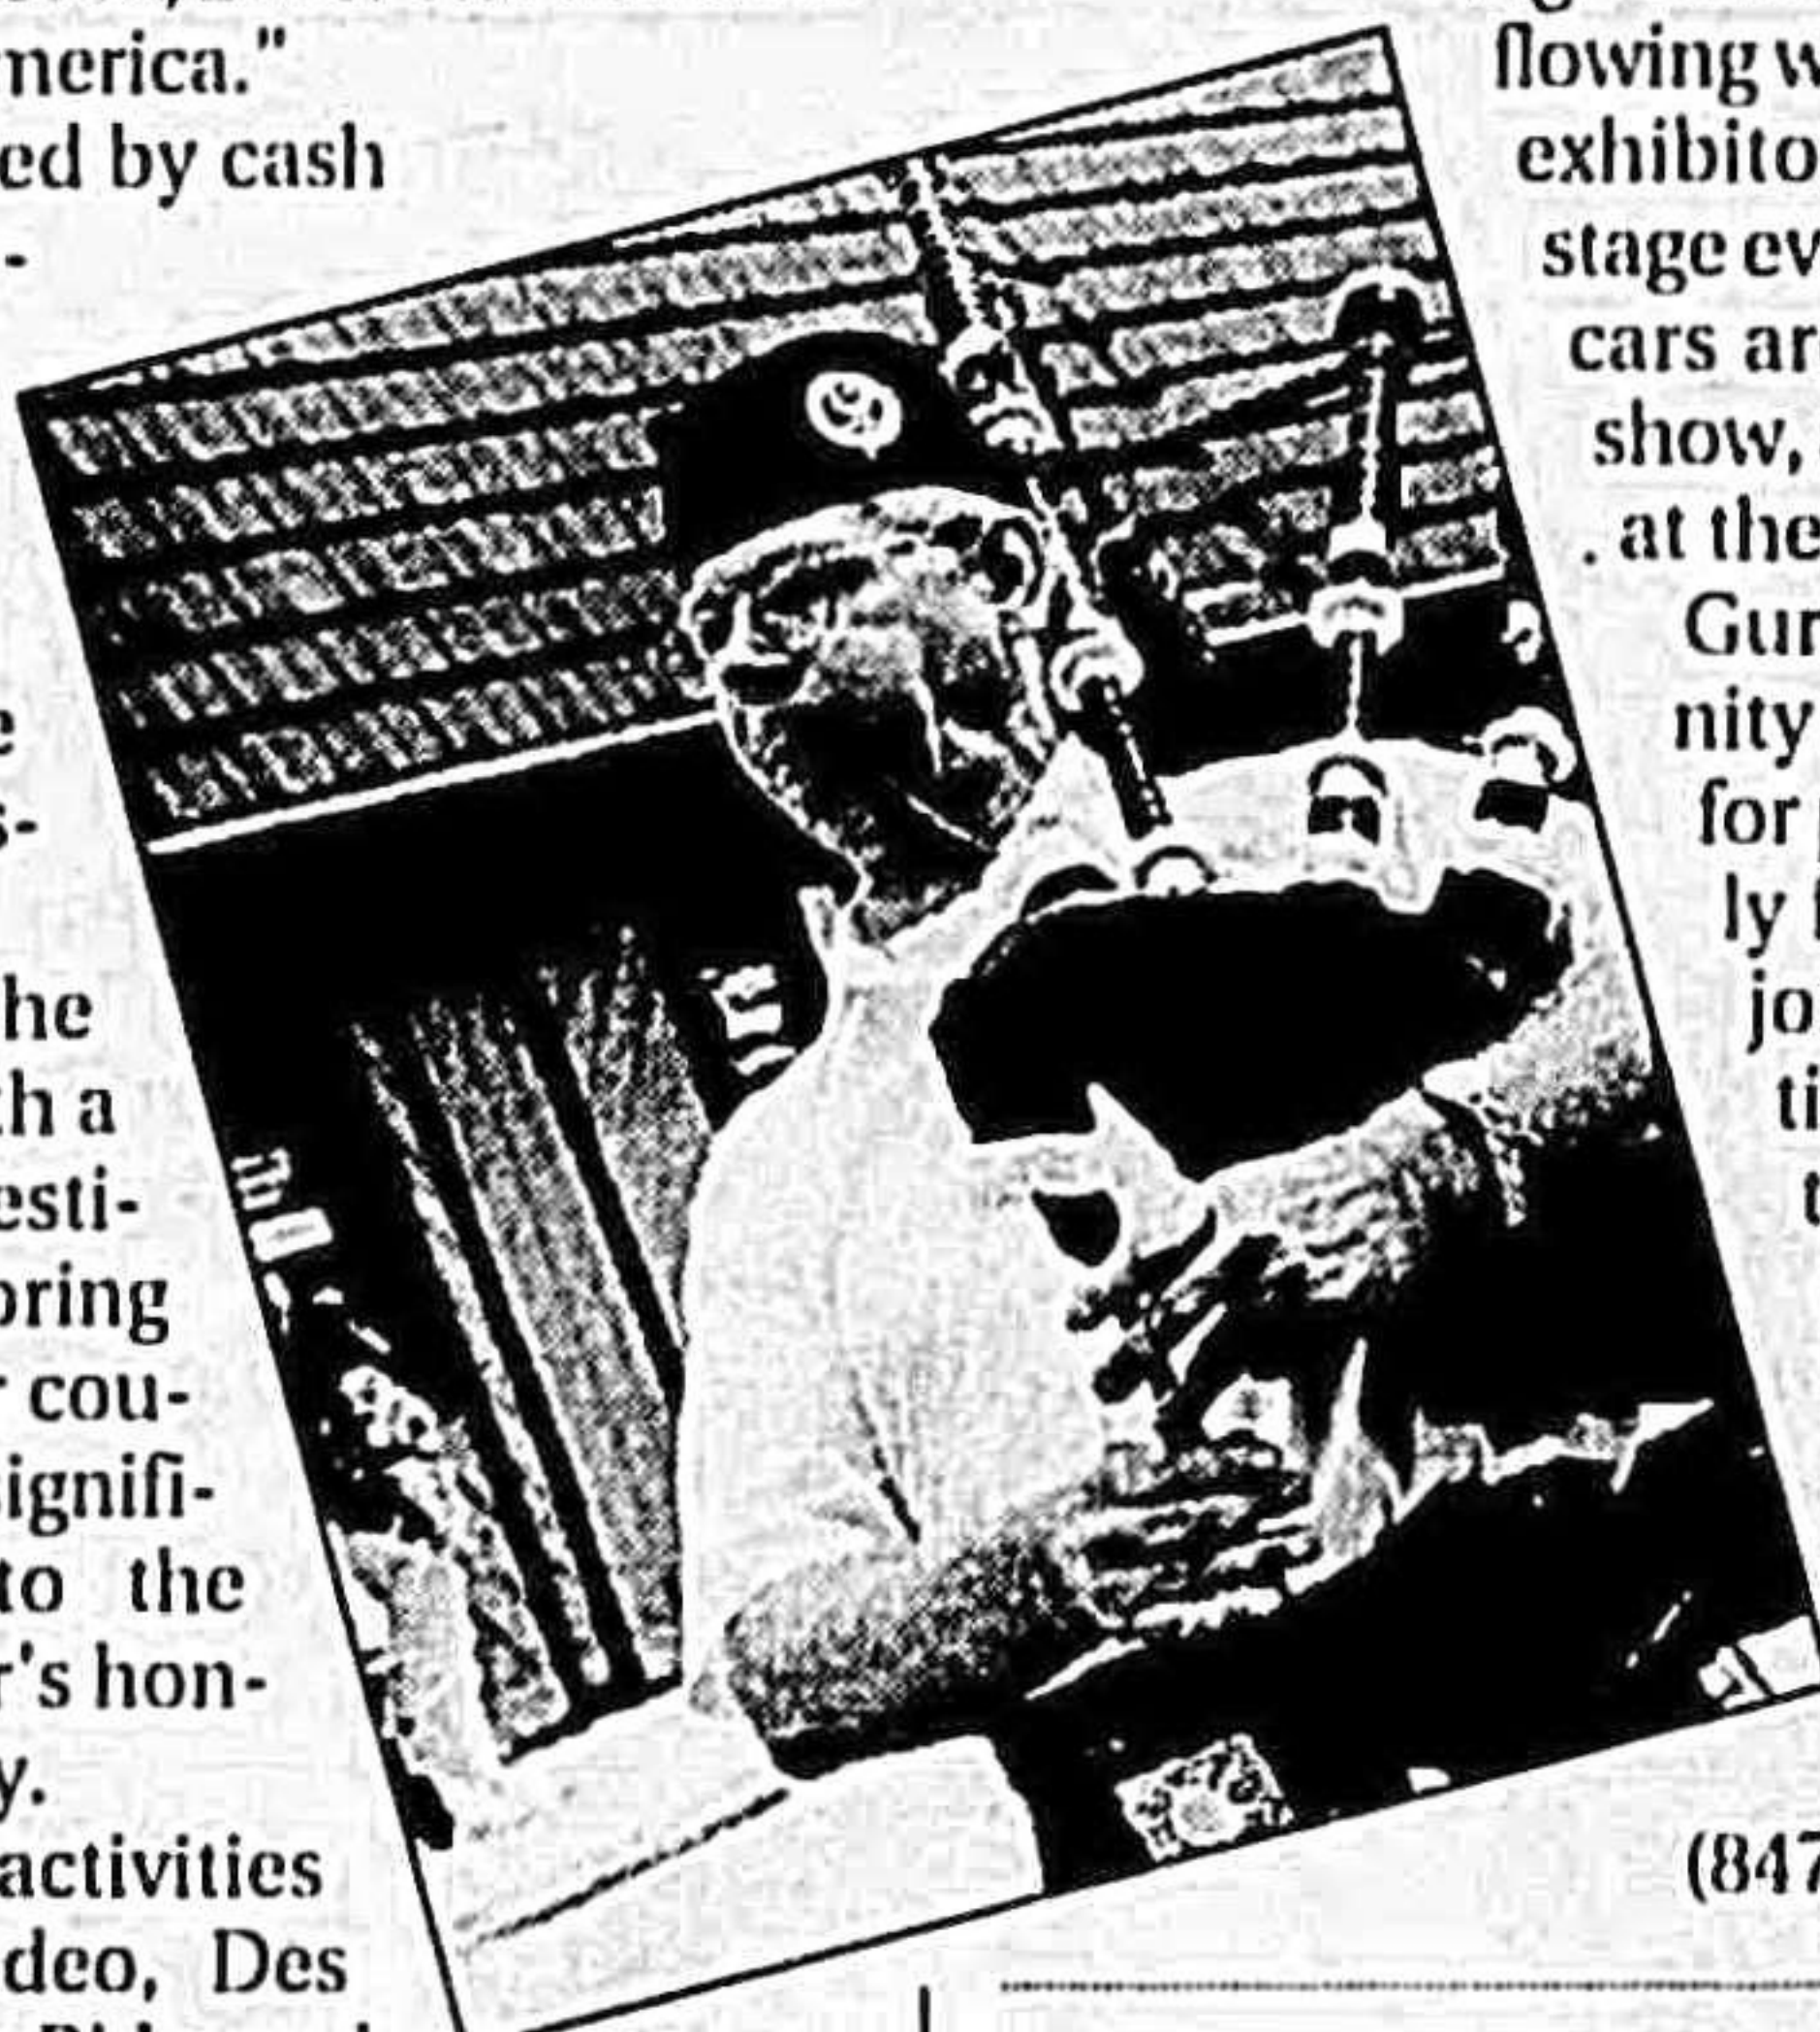

Some of Friday's activities include a bicycle rodeo, Des Plaines River Trail Bike Ride, and a Beach Bash.

Saturday kicks off with a golf tournament and 10K and 2 mile fun run & walk. Viking Park hosts exhibitors, food, games, and stage events. Baby, bike, trike, and buggy contests are held in the morning, along with Open Houses at the Gurnee Police and Fire Departments. The historical Mother Rudd Home offers special exhibits and activities for visitors. Even a student Art Show is held at the library over the weekend. Saturday evening concludes with millennium celebration including fireworks and live bands, a pig roast, and extravaganza at the park.

Sunday events include a pancake breakfast and a parade along Grand Avenue in the Village Center. Viking Park is overflowing with people enjoying the exhibitors, food, games, and stage events. Magnificent show cars are on display at the car show, and stage acts entertain at the talent show.

Gurnee Days is a community affair and was honored for promoting a safe, family fun festival. Come and join in the fun! For additional information, contact the Gurnee Days Corporation at:

His music has been awarded the 1996 Parent's Choice Award and the 1994 ALA Notable Recording. Tickets will be available in the Youth Services Department at the Library. Space is limited, and you must have a ticket to attend. For more information, call the Library at 244-5150.

Gurnee Days host annual Beach Bash

On Friday, August 10, Gurnee Days, in conjunction with Warren Assisting Youth (WAY), will sponsor the annual Beach Bash at Gove Beach.

This is a chaperoned dance with a DJ, swimming, food, and games for youth and teens entering 6th through 9th grades. The admission price is $1 (food is an additional charge).

What a fun way to spend a great Gurnee summer evening, partying at Gove Beach! For additional information, contact Lisa Sheppard at 623-7788.

Gurnee Days Parade follows Old Grand Avenue, and starts at noon on Sunday, Aug. 12.

Gurnee Days Honoree chosen

The Gurnee Days Corporation has announced Virginia Elsbury has been chosen as the Gurnee Days Honoree for 2001. The testimonial dinner honoring Virginia Elsbury will be held on Thursday, August 9 and traditionally kicks off the annual Gurnee Days festivities.

Virginia Elsbury, daughter of John and Alma Callanan, moved to Gurnee at age 10 and has been a resident of Gurnee for over 60 years. She is the mother of five children, proud grandmother of eight grandchildren, and great grandmother to six great grandchildren. She has a strong relationship with her large, extended family of many siblings, in-laws, nieces, and nephews—all from the Lake County area.

As her children were growing up in Gurnee, Elsbury participated in many volunteer activities. She was involved with Brownies, Girl Scouts, P.T.A. and P.T.O., room mother along with being a band parent. For a few football seasons, you could find Virginia operating the Hot Dog Wagon at the games.

Elsbury was an employee of Gurnee Grade School District #56 for 27 years. She worked as Librarian, Kindergarten Aide, and 3rd Grade Teacher's Aide. She was secretary to Asst. Superintendent Verna Rocheleau for 12 years and secretary to Asst. Superintendent Ben Martindale for 3 years. She then went to work with the 6th grade at Zion Pierce Campus for 2 years as Building Secretary and Health Aide before returning to Gurnee Grade School for one more year. Virginia retired in June 1993.

A longtime member of Gurnee Community Church, Elsbury has been actively involved in many church committees over the years. She was a pre-school volunteer, church office volunteer, liturgist, greeter, member of the assistant pastor search committee, adult education committee, funeral committee, and information booth volunteer. She is currently serving on the library committee at the church. Elsbury played piano for Sunday School classes and the youth group. Virginia is also the treasurer of the Elderberries, a senior group at Gurnee Community Church.

Some of Elsbury's numerous volunteer activities include the Gurnee Women's Club—past president; 10th District Women's Club—past president and secretary; Gurnee American Legion Auxiliary; Gurnee Days Corporation; and Women Interested in Government (WINGS)—charter member and board member.

Currently, Elsbury is an independent business owner of an e-commerce business—Quick Star. Also, she works part-time at Community Trust Credit Union and was past secretary to the board of directors at the credit union.

Certainly Elsbury has given of her time, many talents, and energy in a multitude of family, church, vocational, and community activities. She is a busy, active, caring and concerned woman who has given so much to the Gurnee community, often behind the scenes.

Each year the Gurnee Days Corporation seeks nominations from the community for residents who have made significant contributions to the community for over ten years. Gurnee Days Corporation is pleased to have such a devoted person as Virginia Elsbury as the 2001 Gurnee Days Honoree and Parade Marshall of the annual Gurnee Days parade. Invitations for the testimonial dinner will be available in early July. For additional information, call Elizabeth Ebert at (847) 244-6699.

Serving
Lake County and

30 years.

Not fair; great!

County clerk verifying voter lists

All Lake County registered voters should have received a voter verification postcard in the mail from Lake County Clerk Willard Helander in the past weeks. Voters use the cards to verify their names and addresses or to advise the county clerk if they have moved or changed their names. The clerk is required by state law to verify the list of voters every two years to maintain accurate voter lists. The clerk's office mailed notices to more than 355,000 registered voters. Those voters represent an increase of 100,000 since the last countywide audit in 1991.

"This is a very large undertaking for the county clerk's office," Helander said. "The audit is needed to identify and cancel registrations for voters who cease to be qualified. The process has removed more than 30,000 persons from the list of active voters to date," Helander added.

With new district lines being set for state and federal offices, every voter will receive a new voter card once the lines are set; however, under federal law signed by former President Clinton, voters who have moved from their address of registration cannot be removed from voter lists in the 90 days prior to an election when federal offices are on the ballot. Because new district lines are not expected to be finalized until late December or early 2002, the cancellation of the 30,000 moved or "missing in action" voters will not occur at the time new voter cards are mailed.

In the case of voters who have moved within Lake County, the summer audit serves as a reminder to voters to re-register at their new addresses. In addition to updating voter information, the audit saves expenses for the county clerk's office by providing an accurate count of how many ballots need to be printed for the different jurisdictions. Voters who have not received a card and believe they are registered to vote in Lake County should call the county clerk's office, 377-2410, to verify voter registration.

ANSWERS

HOROSCOPE

Aries - March 21/April 20

Your generally friendly nature makes an important business associate nervous. Don't be someone you're not, but don't be overly aggressive either. Once he or she gets to know you, everything will go smoothly. Don't be too impressed with the person whom you've been dating. Something just isn't right. Be cautious.

Taurus - April 21/May 21

Go after what you really want this week, Taurus. Don't let the competition scare you away. You are more than capable of succeeding in this situation. An old friend whom you haven't seen in a while calls you. Catch up with him or her, but don't be too welcoming. He or she wants something from you.

Gemini - May 22/June 21

You haven't been yourself lately. That's going to change by the middle of the week. The pressure you've been feeling will disappear as you make great strides at work. Co-workers are impressed with your efforts and the higher-ups reward you. Enjoy the attention. You deserve it.

Cancer - June 22/July 22

Don't wear your heart on your sleeve, Cancer. This special someone whom you've fallen for isn't all he or she seems to be. He or she is hiding something. Find out what it is before you make a commitment. A loved one invites you to a family outing. Say yes — it's sure to be a lot of fun.

Leo - July 23/August 23

An acquaintance needs a shoulder to cry on. Be sympathetic and supportive. It will bring the two of you closer and be the beginning of a strong relationship. You get an unexpected windfall late in the week. Splurge a little on yourself — you deserve it. However, put something aside for the future. You'll need it soon.

Virgo - Aug 24/Sept 22

Be punctual for an important meeting early in the week, Virgo. You'll miss out on a great opportunity if you're late. A close friend gets into trouble and needs your help. Do all that you can to help. Your efforts will be appreciated. Capricorn plays an important role late in the week.

Libra - Sept 23/Oct 23

A quiet evening with a friend early in the week turns into a crowded party. Don't be angry with your friend. None of this is his or her fault. Just try to get through the evening. Things will get better by Wednesday. A loved one needs advice. Be honest.

Scorpio - Oct 24/Nov 22

You have to stay in control of a hectic situation this week, Scorpio. Everyone else panics. Do whatever you can to keep things going smoothly. Your efforts will be rewarded. A loved one tries to play Cupid. Don't get angry; he or she means well. Aries plays a role.

Sagittarius - Nov 23/Dec 21

You're in for a frustrating week, Sagittarius. However, it's imperative that you keep your temper in check. You'll only lose the support of those around you if you get angry. A family gathering turns out to be much more fun than you expected. Enjoy yourself, and have a good time.

Capricorn - Dec 22/Jan 20

You're a smart person, Capricorn. So, don't get upset when you have to take a backseat to someone else early in the week. You know that you're not the most capable person for the job. That special someone has a surprise for you. Show him or her how much you appreciate it.

Aquarius - Jan 21/Feb 18

You're in for a peaceful week, Aquarius. Things go well in your professional life, and your love life takes flight. You meet an intriguing person who reciprocates your interest. Make the first move; you won't be sorry. Leo plays an important role late in the week.

Pisces - Feb 19/March 20

Take the time to help a friend in need early in the week. He or she is in a real bind and needs assistance. Be supportive. He or she definitely will appreciate all that you do. A loved one drops by unexpectedly. Try to get him or her to talk, because he or she has something important to say.

Emotional win for Winker; Navy Night Aug. 4

Wilmot Speedway hosts U.S. Navy Night on Saturday, August 4 as the Star Trac 410 Outlaw Sprints highlight the program along with IMCA modifieds and the Herb's IMCA hobby stocks. Grandstands open at 5 p.m. with sprint time trials at 6:15 p.m. and racing at 7 p.m.

The Original Outlet Mall/Shalom Center Food Drive will then be Saturday, August 11. Food donations of non-perishable items will be accepted starting Aug. 4 at the Speedway.

In action Saturday, July 28, Kurt Winker of Pleasant Prairie, Wis. scored an emotional win by taking top honors in the 25-lap Star Trac 410 Outlaw Winged Sprint Car feature on July 28 at Premier Racing Production's Wilmot Speedway to highlight Body Craft of Antioch Night.

Ed Devall of Waukegan captured his fourth IMCA modified 20-lap feature win in six starts this season at Wilmot while Dave Grenlund of Sharon, Wis., the 2000 Wilmot champion without winning a feature event, scored his first-ever main event win in the 10-lap Herb's IMCA hobby stock headliner.

"This is a very emotional win," said Winker, after doing a couple of donuts in the infield during his victory lap. The feature win was Winker's first since his father, Allen Winker, passed away Memorial Day weekend from cancer.

"I know my dad was with me," said Winker.

John Tierney of Burlington, Wis. took the initial lead in the sprint main, with Winker getting in front just prior to a yellow on lap four. With scoring reverting back a lap, Tierney reclaimed the top spot. Tierney and Winker ran wing-to-wing for several laps before Winker worked to the inside on lap seven. A yellow came out one lap later, but this time Winker stayed at the point as a full lap was completed prior to the caution.

"Sometimes, it falls in your favor and sometimes it doesn't," said Winker.

Winker's win stopped Johnsbury's Dave Moulis' win streak at four at Wilmot, Moulis, who earlier set fast time for the 41-car field, ended up second. Brent Mason of Winthrop Harbor was third, Rick Kelsey of West Allis, Wis. fourth and Tierney fifth.

Michael H. Babicz

"This one was tiring," said Devall. "I have to take my hat off to the Simons brothers (Nick and Mike II). They've really stepped up their program this year."

Nick Simons of Genoa City, Wis. jumped in front, maintaining the lead through the race's only caution on lap 13. Simons, Devall and Mike Wedelstadt of Fremont, Wis. went three-wide down the backstretch just prior to the yellow for a stalled car right in front of the lead trio. Two laps after the restart, Devall, who originally started 10th in the 18-car field, went to the outside in turn four and was able to make it stick to take the lead. At the finish it was Devall with Wedelstadt, who started 12th, coming on to edge Simons for second. Mike Sandholm of Kenosha, who originally started 11th, came on to finish fourth while Mike Sullivan of Trevor, Wis. was fifth.

"Finally, after two years," said Grenlund, following a somewhat bizarre finish in the hobby stock main. "I came out of turn two and saw Tony (Schlei) sitting there. I said to myself, that's nice of Tony to stop and let me get by. The first one feels great."

Schlei, who had won four out of five hobby stock features this season, appeared headed for a fifth until his transmission broke coming out of turn two on the white flag lap resulting in his car coasting to a stop one-half lap short of the win.

"I guess I kept my wheels under me this time," said Grenlund, referring to Schlei's remarks the week before in victory lane.

John Simons of Chicago took the early lead with Schlei, of Zion, charging in front in turn two on lap five. Schlei appeared headed for the win until the transmission broke. At the checkered flag it was Grenlund, Jim Scanlon of Pleasant Prairie, Wis. second. Joseph Mathews, also from Pleasant Prairie, was third, Chicago's Billy Shawn Bourland fourth and Schlei fifth.

The fast track saw two track records for qualifying events. In the sprints, Brian Kristan of Beach Park won the fourth 10-lap heat in a time of 2:21.64, eclipsing the old mark of 2:22.67 set by Zion's Jim Walkanoff Jr. on July 5, 1998.

The 10-lap IMCA modified 'B' main won by Elmer Everman of Kenosha in a time of 3:07.09 broke the old mark of 3:11.29 by Chuck Ostergaard of Wildwood set Sept. 4, 1999.

Wilmot Speedway is located on the Kenosha County Fairgrounds in Wilmot, Wis.

All-Stars earn fourth at tournament

The Lake Villa in-house All-Stars took fourth-place out of 13 teams in the Cary Tournament of Champions Classic. The first game saw Lake Villa come back from a 4-0 first-inning deficit to defeat Genoa-Kingston 9-4. The pitching of Daniel Burnett, Kevin Kelly, and Dominic Costa led the way, allowing two earned runs with nine combined strikeouts. Offensively, Kyle Sytsma went 3-for-3 with a triple and Kevin Kelly and Tyler Ruefer chipped in with two hits apiece. Taylor Breum, Sytsma and Costa also knocked in two runs. In the second game, Lake Villa lost 1-0 nail-biter to Central District. Pitching again carried the Lake Villa as Ruefer, Kelly, and Daniel Burnett were outstanding in giving up only four hits. Geoff Hilt and Costa had the only two hits for Lake Villa.

The All-Stars then took on eventual tournament champion Geneva, losing 10-3. Hitting stars for Lake Villa included Geoff Hilt and Zach Percival. Breum made the catch of the day, a running snag down the left-field line to stop a sure double.

Before Lake Villa could make it to the quarterfinals, they had to go through six tie-breakers to see if they would advance. With Zach Percival and Kelly leading the pitching, the All-Stars turned back Lake Zurich in a 4-3 thriller. Lake Villa managed only four hits, led by Sytsma's triple and single and a hit each by Costa and Nick Goetzinger. The outcome seemed in doubt, when in the fifth inning, shortstop Sytsma went high in the air to stab a line drive with the tying and leading runs on second and third. This advanced Lake Villa to the semi-finals where it again lost to Geneva, 11-4. Hitting stars for Lake Villa included Geoff Hilt with two and Goetzinger, Sytsma, Ruefer, and Kelly chipping in with one hit apiece. Kelly also knocked in two runs.

In the battle for third-place, Lake Villa lost to Cary I, 13-6. Sytsma, Breum, Travis Kwielford and Hilt all had hits while Sytsma tallied three RBIs on a bases-clearing double. The Lake Villa team is managed by John Sytsma and coached by Mike Goetzinger and Guy Ruefer.

Lake County Partners hired Jeff Sharp as program manager for the manufacturing extension office. He will work through the Lake County Partners (LCP) and the Chicago Manufacturing Center (CMC) to provide business expansion services to small-and medium-sized manufacturing firms in Lake County.

Management consulting services are available in such areas as strategic planning, merger and acquisition planning, sales and marketing assistance, information technology, ERP software selection, e-business solutions, environmental services, quality and process improvements (ISO 9000 registration), Lean Manufacturing, shop floor layout and energy management.

"Our consulting services are subsidized and the savings are passed on to businesses," Sharp said. "In some cases, local, state or federal grants are available to pay for some of the programs. Lake County Partners and the CMC know how to help companies find and apply for these funds."

Sharp has 12 years of experience in chemical distribution and eight years in plant operations. He is a graduate of the University of Illinois with a degree in agricultural mechanization. "Coming from the management of a small manufacturing firm, I think there are great opportunities through our programs that more businesses need to be aware of and take advantage of," Sharp said.

Adopt-a-Highway program seeks additional volunteers

The Lake County Division of Transportation's Adopt-a-Highway program gives business, civic and not-for-profit organizations an opportunity to volunteer for the good of their community. The program is designed for those groups to adopt a stretch of county highway and pick up litter on both sides at least twice a year for two years.

Since the program's inception seven years ago, Adopt-a-Highway volunteers have removed litter from 250 sections of Lake County highways. Participants include groups such as Saddlebrook Farms Homeowners Association, Waukegan Township Staben Center, Lake Bluff Open Lands Association and Baxter Healthcare Corporation.

Adopt-a-Highway program provides an opportunity for environmentally conscious organizations and citizens to make a personal contribution to a cleaner environment.

"We've been participating for a number of years and are proud to be a part of helping the environment," said Andrea Schwartz, environmental technologist for Baxter Healthcare Corporation, which has been adopting Wilson Road between Rte. 120 and Nippersink Road since 1993.

Applications for the program should be sent to the Lake County Division of Transportation offices, 600 W. Winchester Rd., Libertyville, Ill., 60048. Adopt-a-Highway applications are due Aug. 1-15, for a two-year commitment starting Nov. 1. Applications are available by calling the Lake County Division of Transportation at 847-362-3950.

Participants must be at least 10 years old. Participants younger than 18 must have adequate adult supervision.

As a result of their time and efforts, the citizen groups have helped maintain the appearance of 295 miles of the county's roadways. According to Lake County Division of Transportation Director Martin Buehler, the county provides all of the necessary tools and recognizes the groups for their time.

"We provide high-visibility vests, trash bags and safety information and put up highway signs to recognize the particular groups for their efforts," Buehler explained.

For further information, visit the Division of Transportation link on the Lake County web site, www.co.lake.il.us. Adopt-a-Highway brochures are also available by calling 847-362-3950.

The Lake County Division of Transportation serves county residents and visitors by, among other things, planning, constructing, maintaining and working to improve county transportation facilities.

A Good Cover Letter could open the Door to Your Next Job By Scott T. Fleischmann

The first information that most companies will have about you comes from your cover letter. Most recruiters will read your cover letter first and then, if he or she feels that you may have the skills for a specific job opening, your resume will be read. Some recruiters will not even read the resume if the cover letter is poorly written.

Since the cover letter creates the first impression, it may be the most important document that you create for your future employer. Here are some thoughts that may help you create better cover letters.

• The cover letter should be focused on the particular job for which you are applying. That means that you need to write a different cover letter for every resume that you send out.

• Do your thorough research before you write the cover letter. You want to know everything you can about the company that will receive your resume. Explore the financial information (You can find this data in the company's annual report and 10k statement.) Learn about their products and the market for their products, which is usually available on their web site. Discover their strengths and their weaknesses and the market perception of the company by reading business articles about the company. More information will help you to write a better cover letter. Recruiters like the fact that you have taken the time to learn about their company.

• Very early in the letter, share some of the information you have discovered. Here are some key phrases that could help:

- "It is my privilege to send my resume to one of four companies that received the Johnson award last year."

- "I was impressed by the fact that you have been profitable in every quarter since 1987."

- "Although David and the Giant Pickle is my favorite Big Idea production, all of your films show great creativity."

• Tell them how your skills may contribute to some aspect of their business. For example:

- "I noticed that your firm is developing a multimedia web site. My skills may apply to this project since I have contributed to three similar sites in the past."

- "Your firm is known for having clean, well maintained theme parks. I believe that my experience on a cleaning crew could be valuable in continuing that image."

• Tell them your goal. Do you want to work for them? If you do, tell them why you want to work for them. Do you want an interview? If you do tell them what you want to accomplish in the interview (for example: "I would like to meet with you to explore our mutual goals.")

• Finally, keep the letter short and easy to read. Use wide margins (1.5") and double spacing. Write no more than four short paragraphs, three paragraphs is preferable. A good cover letter is clear, concise and short.

Knowing how to create well-written cover letters is essential to finding the best job for you. These guidelines are the first step in creating those letters.

How To Survive The Job Search

By Nancy Sakol

Q: Several weeks ago I fell ill in the evening before an important meeting at work in which there was a presentation that I needed to give. Knowing that I would be unable to attend the meeting, I contacted an individual who I know would do the presentation for me. The next morning I left a message on my boss's voice mail who I know would not be pleased with me, letting him know that I was going to the emergency room at (name withheld) and had a stomach disorder and could not make the meeting. I also let him know that I gave the information necessary for the meeting to another person who I felt would do a fine presentation. I had not heard back from him after several hours, so at the end of the day I placed another call to him and let him know that I would try to be there the following day if I was feeling better and to please call me and tell me how the meeting went. The next morning I was still not 100% so I called in and said that I should be fine by the third day and had hoped to return. Again I asked for him to please contact me so I could find out how the meeting went. After a few hours, I decided to call the person who I gave the meeting information to who was very short with me on the phone stating that she could not talk and that she would see me at work the next day. I did report to work that following day and was called in to my boss's office who asked for the release form or documentation from the hospital. I was surprised by his request and said I didn't have one. He asked me to go home and get it. At that point I realized I was caught up in a situation that I had created by the fact that I told them I was going to the hospital and did not. I went home and called him on the phone and told him I never ended up going to the hospital. At which point he asked for my resignation. He said I should have told him when I was in his office, but by the fact that I left only compounded the problem. He also told me that I should never have taken it upon myself to pass off a presentation for a meeting to someone else without his approval. I thought I was doing something smart by covering for the meeting. I have a good track record with this company and feel they should have understood I wasn't feeling well. Now I was forced to resign against my better judgment, from a position I loved. What do you think? B.R. - Vernon Hills

A: Your lack of "better judgment" is what got you here to begin with. You should have revised your comment about the emergency room visit when you in fact knew you were not going to go. At the very least, when your boss sent you home to get the documents, you should have come clean. Once you left the office in pursuit of a document that didn't exist, you became enveloped in a scenario that would make you look guilty no matter what you did. More than likely he called the hospital only to find you were not there. He more than guessed you would not be able to produce the document and continued to play the game rather than confront you. While I do not like to assume anything, I will guess that perhaps passing the presentation on to someone of your choice was a poor decision at best. Especially if you had zero authority to do so. If so, it would also be my guess that probably set this whole termination into motion. I would have advised not to have left the building when you did, but rather explain that there was a change in your plans that evening and that you should have called to tell him so. I would have also let him know that you felt you were being responsible by making sure that he was covered for the presentation. Perhaps this would have played out differently. Hope this helps for the future. Good luck.

ROUTE 21 / I-94

Tip of the week alignment By Pro Joe Bitterman at Bobby's Golf Center

Players should stand a few yards directly behind the ball to line up their shot. Draw an imaginary line from their target back to the ball. Look for something 6-8 inches in front of ball. Square your club face to the intermediate target, then square your stance. Swing out over intermediate target, down the target line. Your shots will be online towards your target.
